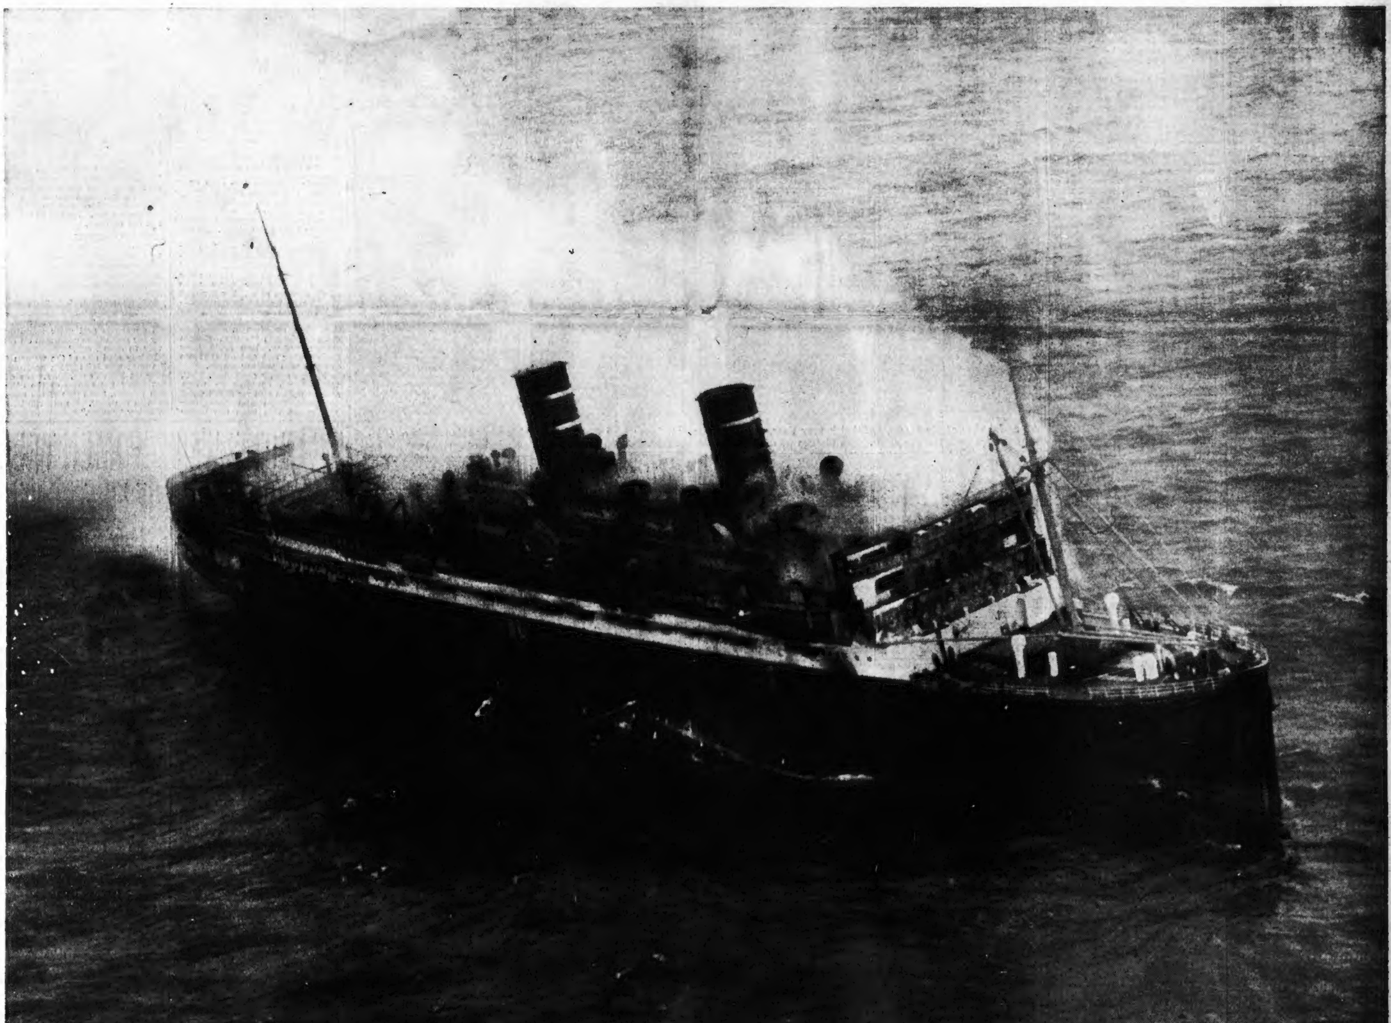
Panic Follows Tragedy on Ship



The superstructure of the Morro Castle is shown in this exclusive photograph—flown to Boston today—with flame-flecked clouds of smoke and steam still billowing out of the ship's hold. Lifeboats, rails, everything that could burn were licked off the palatial ship by the fire tongues which took a toll of scores of panic-stricken lives off the New Jersey coast this morning. All paint is gone from the upper portion of the luxury liner, leaving only bare, scorched steel as a few daring rescuers inspect her deck. They can be seen in this picture, which was rushed to the Boston Evening American by special plane in spite of the fog and rain that grounded all ships in this area. DEATH TOLL IN SHIP FIRE SET BETWEEN 150 AND 200

TALES OF HORROR RELATED BY FIRST SURVIVORS

New York, Sept. 8—An appaling number of persons—between 150 and 200—lost their lives in a holocaust of flame today when fire destroyed the Ward liner Morro Castle off the New Jersey coast.

The 11,000-tton liner went up in a roar of flame as awful in its suddenness and violent destruction as any submarine torpedo that struck in the war days when such disasters were almost commonplace.

Many of the victims were carefree, seagoing tourists returning from a gay Havana holiday.

They were sleeping in their luxurious staterooms when the disaster struck in the blackness of a gale-wracked night. The most plausible theory advanced was that a spear of lightning from the angry skies had hit the vessel amidships, firing its oil tank and spreading desolation from hold to spacious sun deck.

At noon a check by International News Service of the survivors brought ashore in lifeboats and picked up by rescue vessels which raced to the scene indicated that only 182 of the 558 persons aboard were known to have been saved.

Should this tally stand, it would mean that no less than 376 persons went to a terrible death in searing flames or storm-tossed waters—one of the worst disasters in the history of American shipping and far eclipsing the sinking of the liner Vestris, which went down off the Virginia Capes in 1928 with a loss of 110 lives.

In the wake of the tragedy came charges that many passengers died while members of the crew were saved.

In some of the lifeboats which reached Asbury Park and other beaches along the New Jersey shore, were often as many as nine members of the crew and only thre or four passengers.

Oil-smeared seamen saved from the depths of the liner's hold themselves told how walls of flame prevented them from rescuing trapped passengers, and how a cry of "save yourselves" went aloft and sent the crew scuttling for the boats.

One steward, Joseph Markov, told International News Service how the ship's alarm tumbled him out of his bunk in the early morning.

He rushed to a companionway amidships where he found the oil tank in flames. Several members of the crew were struggling with hose lines to quell the blaze.

The hoses burst and the roaring flames burned their clothing. They fled to the top-deck.

There they found but one lifeboat on the starboard side—the rest had already been burned away. Thy scooped out three hysterical young girls who were standing on the deck, and lowered the boat.

As they piled in, they witnessed a scene of horror on the port side.

There scores of passengers were fighting for their lives, separated from them by a roar of crimson flame. It was useless to attempt to go to their aid.

And in all that frightful panic, with the flames spreading so rapidly that in a few moments the ship was one massive glare of red against the horizon, with passengers leaping into the sea as panic gripped them, with heroic rescues vieing with selfish cowardice in the struggle for safety, the skipper of the Morro Castle lay helpless in his cabin.

He was dead—struck down by a heart attack which killed him only a little while before the Morro Castle plunged into its last storm—and the greatest task that comes to any sailor was deputized to his first officer.

Ships that sped to the Morro Castle's aid, the Monarch of Bermuda, and the Andrea Luckenbach, picked up some survivors.

The Monarch of Bermuda lifted 60 from the turbulent seas, and the Luckenbach 22.

Eighty-five others who were able to cast loose in seaworthy lifeboats that escaped the flame, landed safely on the New Jersey coast, tumbling into the arms of rescuers when their frail craft bumped onto the shore on the crest of a wave.

Bodies Float On Tossing Waves

These were the quick—and the few—but the dead were many more.

Only five life-boat loads bore living burdens to safety.

Throughout the morning, bodies of young, old and midle-age floated lifelessly on the tossing waters. Some were cast up on the shore like jetsam. Some were dragged in by Coast Guardsmen patrolling the scene with boathooks.

A few hung limply, but still alive, in the armpits of their lifebelts.

Scorched and burned, half suffocated from smoke and suffering from immersion, these were rushed to hospitals to re-live their night of horor in delirious dreams.

At noon, some nine hours after the tragedy first struck, there were many still struggling with the elements.

Four lifeboats were sighted far out to sea, with some 30 persons aboard. How many were alive and how many dead could not be estimated.

Governor Sees 100 Fighting in Water

Governor A. Harry Moore of New Jersey, taking a personal part in the rescue attempts, flew out over the scene late in the morning in an airplane. He reported back that he had seen approximately 100 persons in the water.

Some were obviously dead. Some may still be alive. All the resources of the New Jersey coastal service were pressed into the attempt to [illegible] these victims from the deep before immersion and exhaustion could add them to the death-toll.

Stateroom Windows Broken by Sailors

But there was not time to rouse all the passengers. Stateroom windows were broken through from the deck side in many cases to awake sleeping occupants, and it was believed many failed to realize their grave danger.

Those who fled quickly escaped in life boats or with the aid of life-belts. Those who stayed behind to dress or to save valubles were trapped.

Dr. Charles Cochrane of Brooklyn, who came ashore in a boatload of survivors, gave a graphic description of the scene which greeted his eyes as he turned out of his cabin in the pitch blackness of night.

"The front part of the ship was all aflame," he said.

"I do not believe any passenger who got caught in the hold or cabin at any point in the ship beyond the library had a chance of escaping."

The Morro Castle left Havana Wednesday night. Last night her commander, Captain Robert Wilmot, died from a heart attack, leaving the vessel in command of Chief Officer W. F. Warms when she caught fire.

Eighty-five survivors were landed in New Jersey. Others were reported here and there, but whether the reports were duplications was a matter of conjecture. An airplane, circling the charred hulk of the Morro Castle, reported two more boats heading inshore.

The plane, manned by a national guard observer, also reported sighting bodies in the sea. But little time could be given early in the day to bringing in the dead. All thought was for the survivors, a terror-stricken and exhausted lot.

A heroic fight through the waves was waged successfully by Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Cohen of Hartford, Conn., who swam ashore and reached the beach exhausted. They had one life preserver between them. They were taken to a hospital.

Of 85 persons to come ashore at Asbury Park, 80 were officers and members of the crew. One boat contained only four seamen—no passengers.

The big coast guard cutter Tampa reported she was standing by the flaming ship as late as 9:45 a. m., eastern standard time, to attempt the rescue of "a number of persons grouped on the forecastle deck."

It was thought that some of the liner's command had clung to the proud tradition of the sea and remained on the quarter deck.

Operators of the line reported that Acting Captain Warms and two of his bridge officers had stayed with the ship, together with some of the members of the crew.

The Morro Castle burned only about eight miles east by south of Asbury Park, 30 miles on an airline from New York City.

Although Asbury Park is the nearest city, the closest inlet at which Coast Guard craft could land survivors is Shark River, three miles south.

So brightly did the flames leap that the blaze could be easily seen, even through the heavy rain and gales which whipped the coast at Asbury Park. The ship was described by first witnesses a "globe of fire."

RADIO REPORTS BODIES AFLOAT

"About 100 bodies are floating out in the water. It's impossible to reach them. The sea is bad."

That message was picked up on a short wave radio receiver at 2.20 this afternoon by the Boston Evening American.

The message had been relayed from a Coast Guard vessel to the shore. Immediately following it, a message to autoists went out from the New Jersey police radio in which they pleaded against jamming of the roads along the Jersey shore. The plea continued:

"The room is needed to rush relief and supplies. Curious autoists who jam the roads may be the means of death."

200 SPURNED LIFEBOAT RESCUE, SAY 25 IN CREW

By Associated Press

Spring Lake, N. J., Sept. 8—The 200 or more passengers of the steamship Morro Castle, who met death aboard the flaming ship eight miles at sea early today, died because of their refusal to enter lifeboats, members of the crew of the vessel said today.

Twenty-five members of the crew, interviewed separately, told practically the same story.

TALE OF HORROR

It was a tale of horror, of men and women frenzied by the racing flames and thick pall of smoke, resisting all attempts of the sailors to get them into the lifeboats and to safety.

The seamen insisted that practically all passengers could have been saved if they had followed orders.

Leroy Kelsey, a seaman from Albany, N. Y., dramatically described the scene aboard the big ship, inbound from Havana, as fire broke out in the early morning with a stiff northeaster blowing.

The crew had succeeded in getting all passengers on deck, Kelsey said, despite the inferno which raced through the superstructure after starting in the library in the fore part of the ship.

Flames licked out across the several decks, smoke—kept down by the heavy weather assailed the nostrils of the men and women who had been aroused from their slumbers and ordered on deck in night clothing and hastily donned garments.

REFUSE RISK

The crew urged them to cross the decks and enter the boats. Sparks and cinders fell about them. The wall of smoke grew heavier and the passengers becoming frenzied refused to risk the few short steps needed to take them to the rail and safety in the boats. Kelsey said:

"They refused to go through the smoke and the flames. We pleaded with them. We tried to herd them but few of them would go. Many even tried to fight past us and get back down the ladders to the lower decks.

"Finally we were forced to take to the boats without them as the sparks and cinders were burning the ropes."

He was asleep in the crew's quarters in the forward part of the ship when he heard the alarm. He continued:

"I jumped up and got into my clothes and ran up on deck. The wind was blowing hard. A lot of fellows in the crew came after me. I should say there were about a dozen of us. We grabbed the fire hoses and began shooting water on the fire which was raging through the midships section. We smashed windows to get our streams through. People were shouting. You could hear them crying out and all the time the fire was getting worse.

"It was pretty confusing. Well, we saw we couldn't do much about the fire and we didn't want to stand there and roast, for just about this time the water suddenly gave out. I think the pumps must have stopped. There we were holding useless hose in our hands.

DIDN'T UNDERSTAND

"Some one yelled about getting to the boats and we all made a move there. The passengers had ringed us and we knew we had to get them off the ship. Well, we told them pretty plainly they would have to get through that smoke and probably get singed by the flames before they reached the boats. But we all had to take the same chance, we told the men and women. They didn't seem to understand.

"I knew there were three girls who had the nerve to follow us, and they got ashore all right.

"We made a break for it all at once. We knew it was that or get burned.

"We got to the boats. And then you know we had to work fast. You couldn't stand there talking about it. Those boats are made to be lowered in seconds, and we did work fast with the wind blowing the flames at our backs and the air full of big clinkers and showers of cinders. I can still feel that heat on the back of my neck and smell the dirty smoke.

"And all the time it was getting worse and worse. There was no stopping the fire.

"We got the boats away and we didn't do it any too quickly, for I think in a few minutes the boats would have been burned and we would all have been lost.

"We had a bad time coming ashore. Once we were almost upset in the raging seas. The crew did everything to save the passengers. If we only had even a half hour we might have done something.

"We pushed the three women into the lifeboat and were showered with glass from the promenade deck. The fire semed to be between the A and B decks in the main salon. We had to either get off or burn.

PUSHED WOMEN

"We just pushed the women into the boat and shoved off. They were splendid and courageous, but all of them were mighty seasick on the rough trip in.

"I understand, but I do not know, that the Furness liner Monarch of Bermuda picked up about 65 survivors and after standing by for some time continued on its way to New York."

Kelsey said one of the women in the boat was Miss Flora La Roach of East Providence, R. I. He did not know the names of the other two women, nor those of the many men in the boat. He described her as being "plucky."

WILLMOTT WED LAST OCTOBER

By Associated Press

New York, Sept. 8—Capt. Robert Willmott, comander of the liner Morro Castle, who died a few hours before his ship met disaster, was to have celebrated his wedding anniversary October 2.

He and his second wife, Mrs. Mathilda Howell Willmott, were married last year. They met on a ship bound for Havana—the ship he was commanding.

They took a honeymoon cruise to Havana.

Captain Willmott had been with the Ward Line thirty-one years, principally on ships plying between Mexico and Havana.

His stepdaughter, Mrs. Robert Reed, the former Pearl Howell on the 1921 Zeigeld Follies, said he had felt ill several times recently, but always returned to duty.

MORRO CASTLE COST 5 MILLION

By Associated Press

New York, Sept. 8—The Morro Castle, carrying a cargo of fire into New York today, is a long, low liner with rakish lines and two funnels bending back before the wind. She was built at a cost of five million dollars.

When she set out on her maiden voyage from New York to Havana, Cuba, August 23, 1930, festooned with flags, she already had won the title of one of the fastest turbo-electric liners afloat, by maintaining an average speed of 21 knots in trials.

She failed to set a record for the run on her first voyage making the trip in 59 hours, while the Cunarder Mauretania had made it in less than 60 hours. She made the trip back in 58 hours—a new mark for ships in regular service on the run.

She is 508 feet long and has 11,520 tonnage. She has accommodations for about 500 passengers. She left the yard of her builders, the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Company, for New York, August 16, 1930.

2 WOMEN TELL OF FIRE AT SEA

By Associated Press

Springlake, N. J., Sept. 8—As the morning wore on today rescue work in the Morro Castle fire speeded up. Additional boats were sighted in the sea mists. The Monarch of Bermuda, reaching quarantine, notified federal authorities that of her list of 65 rescued a dozen were "stretcher cases."

Mrs. Renne Mendez Capote of Havana, landed from a life boat to tell how she had given up hope of escape from the flames which had trapped her in a cabin.

"I opened the door only to be met by a wall of flame," she said. "I slammed the door shut and thought it was the end.

"Then one of the crew smashed the glass from the cabin porthole and hiped me out on deck. He lowered me to the next deck whre the lifeboats were being manned and I got in. Few, if any, of those on the lower decks could have lived."

Mrs. Mary Robinson of Richmond Hill, N. Y., fought a heroic battle with the waves and storm for five hours, landing safely but in a state of complete exhaustion. She swam with the aid of a life preserver.

She was carrid to a first aid station on the beach, calling incoherently for her daughter, Lucille, 18, whose fate was not known.

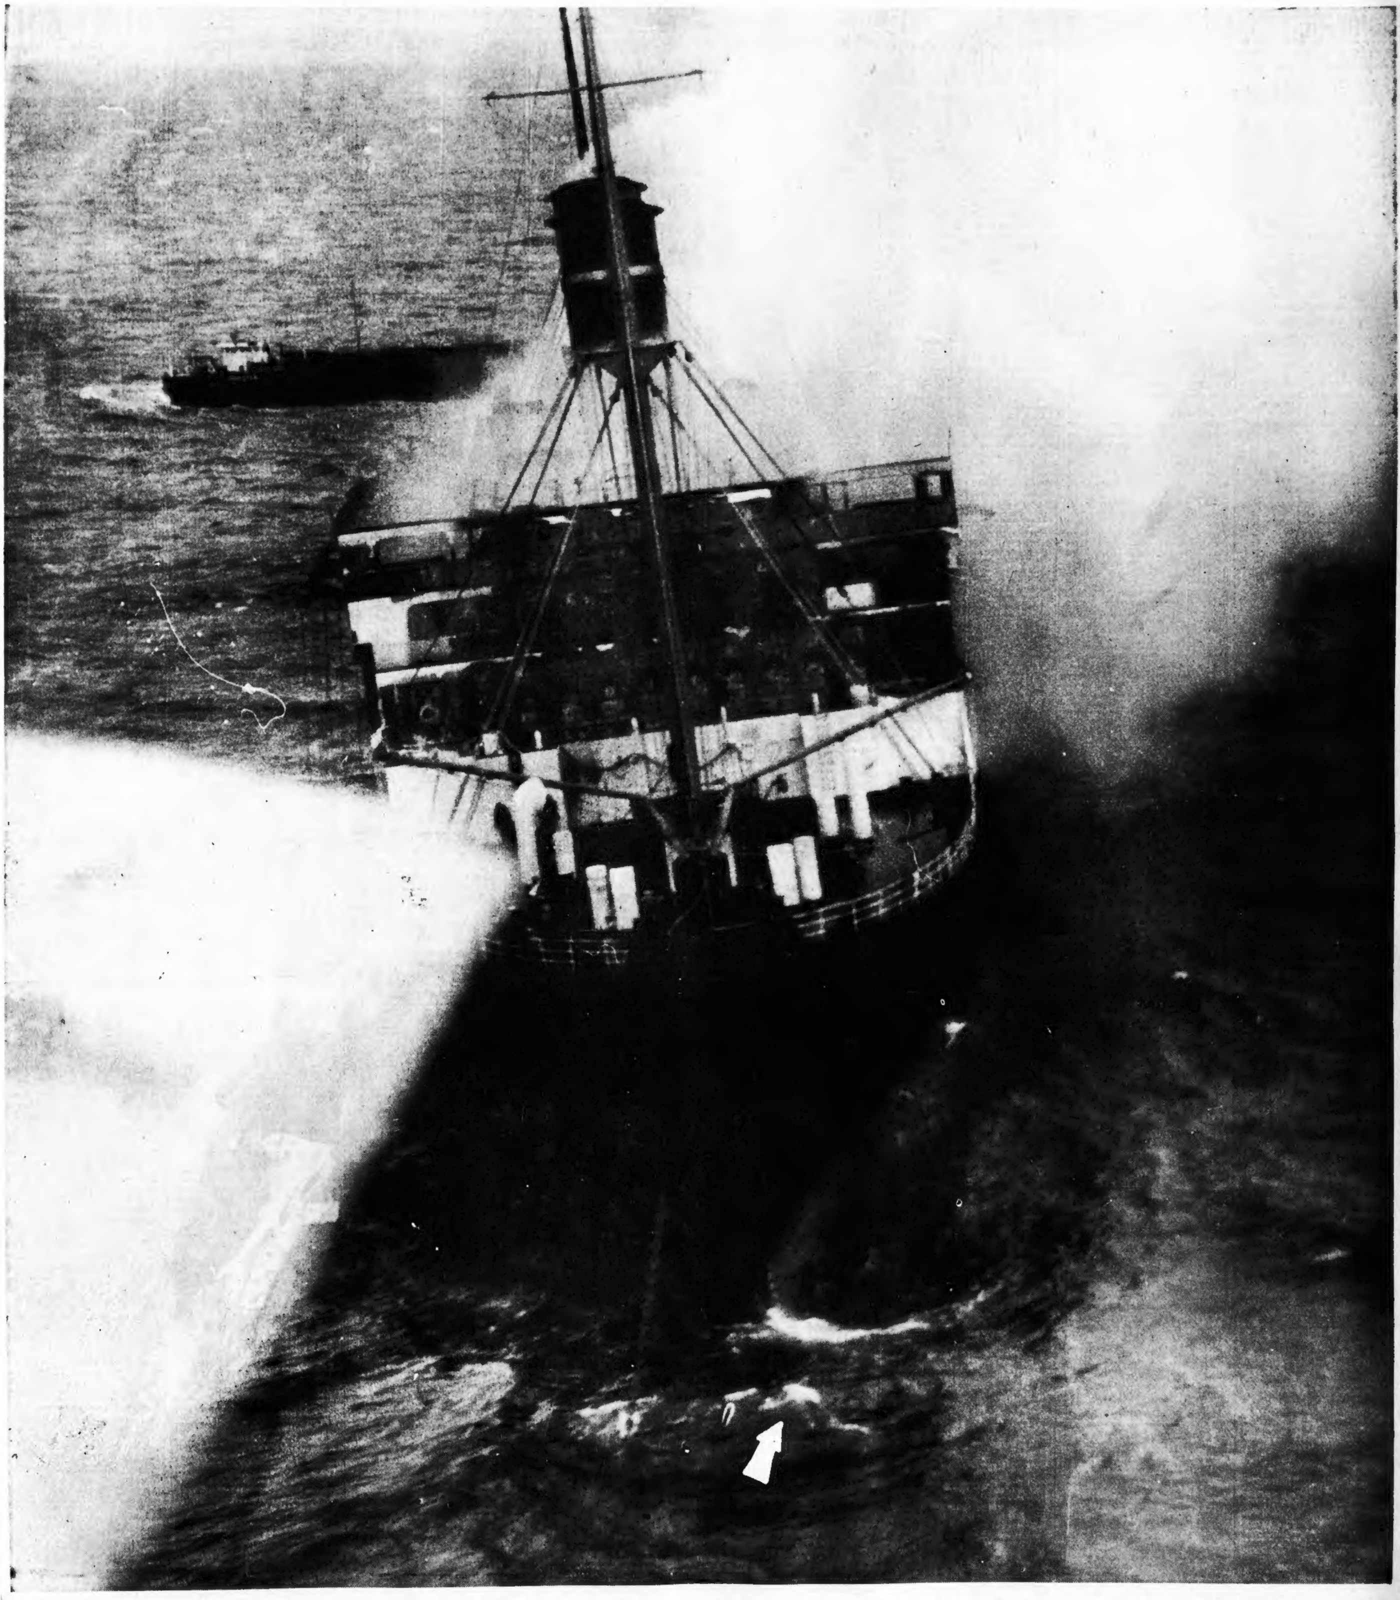
VICTIM SWIMS FOR LIFE IN GRIM TRAGEDY OF SHIP DISASTER



A floating coffin of scorched steel, the Ward liner Morro Castle, is shown burning on the high seas off the New Jersey coast in this first picture to reach Boston of the decade's worst marine tragedy. Taken from the air, this exclusive photograph was rushed to Boston by plane by Pilot Carl O. Chader of New York. Flying blind most of the way, he was finally forced down at Taunton by rain and fog, but brought this and other exclusive pictures the rest of the way to Boston by automobile. Scores of persons perished as the liner, returning to New York from a holiday cruise to Havana, burned. Scores of the victims wer traped in their bunks. Others plunged into the sea without being able even to lower lifeboats. A few can be seen cowering in panic on the ship's scorched bow. Other exclusive pictures of today's marine disaster—the only ones to reach Boston—appear on Pages 2 and 3. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

Perhaps 100,000 More Terrible Hyrcan Tiger Another for the Chair Mussolini's Recipe

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

NO IMPORTANT news about the strike up to six o'clock yesterday, when this was written, except that 100,000 garment workers may walk out on October 1.

One of the best-known business men in the country said yesterday:

"Business is actually in a state of terror. What do you suppose it is that frightens business men just now? The biggest kind of war could not create the fear that exists among the country's important business executives."

Perhaps you can answer the question.

Some are afraid of the little Communist red mouse, with 26,000 members out of 123,000,000 population.

This momentary fear, undoubtedly, is based on one disturbing thing, uncertainty.

What men do not understand shakes their resolution. Macbeth was a brave Scotchman, but you remember what he said, when the ghost suddenly appeared in the banquet hall:

What man dare, I dare:
Approach thou like the rugged Russian bear,
The arm'd rhinoceros, or the Hyrcan tiger—
Take any shape but that, and my Firm nerves
Shall never tremble.

To that he added:

Hence, horrible shadow!
Unreal mockery, hence!

Advance upon the American business man like the Hyrcan tiger, or any of those animals, and he will not blench. But when, on one side, a little red mouse waves a red flag, singing: "Arise, ye prisoners of starvation!" And on the other side a big, fierce administration says: "We'll feed the strikers as long as they strike," your poor business man can only exclaim:

"Hence, horrible shadow! Unreal mockery, hence!" And, for the time being, alas, it refuses to "hence."

Mrs. Eva Coo, 47 years old, and Mrs. Martha Clift, younger, kissed each other good-bye at the jail door in Cooperstown, N. Y. Mrs. Coo went by automobile to Sing Sing, where she will be killed in the electric chair; Mrs. Clift, in another direction, to a woman's prison, to spend "20 years to life."

Between them, according to a jury's decision, they murdered a lame man, Harry Wright, to collect insurance policies on his life, taken out by Mrs. Coo, with herself as beneficiary.

Recently in Sing Sing, where Mrs. Coo now is, the state executed Mrs. Antonio and two men convicted of killing her husband for insurance.

Not very long before, in the same chamber, Mrs. Ruth Snyder was killed for helping a gentleman to murder her husband with a sash weight, for insurance.

Murder to collect insurance is a most dangerous crime. The motive is so clear, murderers should remember that.

Mrs. Coo says, "I am not afraid to burn," meaning not afraid to sit in the electric chair; and she forgives Martha Clift, who, to save her own life, testified against her friend.

But Mrs. Coo is "a little disappointed in human nature."

Perhaps the poor, lame "handyman," knocked on the head by Mrs. Coo with a heavy mallet, and repeatedly run over by an automobile driven by Mrs. Clift to make death seem natural, was also disappointed in human nature.

There is no doubt that Mrs. Snyder, Mrs. Antonio and Mrs. Coo deserved their fate, Mrs. Antonio less guilty than the others, since her husband treated her cruelly and was a peddler of drugs.

The question is, Does the state deserve the disgrace of putting women to death when it isn't necessary; imitating the murderess in her murderous process?

New York State's electric executioner made "another $150" Thursday night by killing Alphonse Brengard.

Brengard's death, delayed for a few days, would not be worth mentioning except that, whereas a criminal is usually wheeled out of the death room a corpse two minutes after he enters the room, it took six minutes to kill Brengard.

The latter, a powerful former state trooper, with big muscles, had to wait six minutes for broken straps in "the chair" to be mended. Brengard kept his eyes fixed on a crucifix held by Father John McCaffery, the prison chaplain, and never flinched.

Willingness "to burn," or calm indifference in the death chair, often accompany the indifference that makes possible commission of a dreadful murder.

Mussolini says Italy is "impervious" to foreign doctrines and to criticism. The Italian premier has evidently found the recipe for exterminating the little red mouse. Would he tell the great big American business man how he does that?

Matthew Woll, vice-president of the American Federation of Labor, considered by those that ordinarily think little of labor leaders "an absolutely honest and very able man," says capital and labor should join to control the Reds. They might buy a mouse trap, paying for it fifty-fifty, but after they got the red mouse in the trap it would go on squealing about the prisoners of starvation.

That little mouse has not had so much fun before in all its life, or, at least, not since Lenin died.

The mother of Thomas J. Mooney, sentenced to life imprisonment in San Quentin prison, but to be released if Upton Sinclair is elected governor, died recently. Now it is proposed to take her body, embalmed, of course, out to San Quentin prison, that her son may look once more upon her face. The warden is not sure that he could "permit such a thing." He ought to be sure.

A few lines telling of a flight across the ocean mention the flight because Professor Richard U. Light of Yale is one of the fliers. The impossible of yesterday becomes the commonplace of today.

Lord Northcliffe of London offered $50,000 to the first man that should fly the British Channel. Now flying the Atlantic means little.

Discovery of the fact that Germany is secretly having submarines built in foreign countries, the kind that would sink French and English merchant ships and warships, very nicely, displeases the French and British, naturally.

In Minneapolis Howard Guilford, who has been editor of the weekly publications, and published unpleasant things about gambling and other forms of vice, will write about vice and gambling no more.

Two killers and one load of buckshot sent into his head decided that.

HEAVY STORM SWEEPS COAST

By Associated Press

New York, Sept. 8—A heavy storm swept the Atlantic coast today as the burning liner Morro Castle lay helpless off the New Jersey shore.

All along the coast storm warnings were flying, while south of Virginia Capa hurricane warnings were ordered. The weather bureau at Washington placed the hurricane 270 miles east of Savannah, Ga., last night and reported it was moving between north and northwest about 15 miles an hour.

Virginia costal points prepared for the storm which was due to strike here in mid-morning.

At the spot where the Morro Castle was burning a driving rain beat down and heavy surf was running making it virtually impossible for small boats to go to the aid of the stricken craft.

Survivor Tells Story of Rescue Off Liner

By Associated Press

Asbury Lake, N. J., Sept. 8—Dr. Charles Cochrane of Brooklyn, who came ashore among the 80 survivors at police headquarters here, early today gave this account of his own experiences aboard the burning steamship, Morro Castle.

"I was asleep in my cabin when, it seemed to me about 3 a. m., I awoke to smell a pungent odor of smoke. I heard a banging on the door and rose quickly.

"The passageway, outside my cabin, was a mass of flames through which there was plainly no escape for me. I slammed the door and rushed to the porthole which fortunately was at deck level.

"Through the porthole I leaped to the deck and ran to a nearby lifeboat. There was much rushing about the deck, but no apparent panic. I tumbled into the lifeboat which was already tightly packed with people.

"It seemed to me that I waited through eternity though it may not have been more than 15 minutes before members of the crew got the lifeboat off the davits and let it into the boiling sea.

"The front part of the ship was a pillar of flame.

"I do not believe any passengers, who got caught in the hold or cabin at any point in the ship beyond the library, had a chance of escaping.

"Through sheets of rain, through churning seas, the lifeboat was somehow, miraculously I think, made safely to the shore.

"I saw only two other lifeboats heading for shore in our direction. Once ashore, we were taken to Spring Lake, police headquarters where the Red Cross gave us sandwiches and coffee and supplied us with warm clothing.

"Nearly everyone here seems to be a member of the crew. I doubt that many passengers came ashore at this point."

CAPTAIN TELLS OF STRUGGLES IN WATER

By the Associated Press

Brielle, N. J., Sept. 8—A picture of the horror that followed the burning of the liner Moro Castle as survivors floundered in the water screaming for help was given today by members of the crew of the fishing boat Paramount who rescued 67 persons.

"It was the most horrible sight I ever saw," said John Bogan, owner of the little craft which for four hours ploughed through the water taking survivors aboard.

"The water seemed to be full of dead people," he said. "There were so many bodies floating around we had to plough right through them."

From the skipper of another rescue craft, the Diana, which brought in 12 bodies, came an account of how sharks added to the terror of the disaster. He said he counted three sharks in the area where survivors were struggling.

SAW BLAZE

Jeff Bogan, 21-year-old captain of the Paramount, said he saw the blaze from the Morro Castle as his craft started out on its daily fishing trip. He turned back to Brielle, notified the Coast Guard and then made for the burning liner.

The youthful captain said there would be groups of persons in the water, clinging to a body of a relative and that the living had to be literally torn from the dead before they could be pulled into the boat.

"People screamed terribly," young Bogan said. "We told them: 'We'll get you. Stop screaming.'"

While the Paramount was on its mission of mercy, it kept blowing its horn to call out other boats, because the crew feared the craft would ont be big enough to hold all the survivors.

"We didn't stop until we heard no more screaming," said John Bogan, Jr., son of the owner of the boat. "By that time we had 67 on board, many more than the boat could hold normally. The people we picked were so exhausted they just lay in heaps on the deck like dead people."

CLING TO BODIES

The Paramount's crew said that at one time they came across a mother and her daughter holding on to the body of a man. As they piled the woman and her daughter to safety the woman screamed to them to save the body of her husband, but when they pointed to the living still to be rescued she ceased her screams.

Another fishing boat, the Doris, picked up one woman and seven men, but all of them died on the way to Brielle. The woman clung to a baby as she was hauled aboard the Doris, but when she saw it was dead she flung it into the ocean. She died a few minutes later.

Bodies Strung Along Shore, Say Police

By International News Service

Spring Lake, N. J., Sept. 8—Twenty-two bodies of victims of the Morro Castle disaster were reported found along the shore front between Manasquan and Point Pleasant by police and other rescue workers returning here with survivors of the sea tragedy.

"You can hardly go a mile on that 10-mile stretch," one officer said, "without finding a body or two."

Bob Smith, who said he was cruise director of the Morro Castle, exhausted after swimming five miles to shore, was taken to police headquarters for treatment.

"By the time I got on deck," he said, "the boat was a mass of flames. There was only one life-preserver left and not a lifeboat in sight. Then I saw a girl standing on the deck. I tossed her the lifebelt, hopped over and swam all the way to shore, and I just barely made it."

Crew Survivors Attack Ship Officers

By International News Service

Spring Lake, N. J., Sept. 8—Bedraggled, surviving members of the crew of the ill-fated Morro Castle today coupled graphic stories of the fire that destroyed their craft with censure of the ship's officers for not attempting to beach the ship.

In salty phrases, they voiced grumbling complaints that beaching of the ship, while not resulting in avoidance of the disaster, would have reduced materially the staggering toll of casualties.

As they spoke, swirling clouds of smoke offshore told of the holocaust within the Morro Castle, reducing the proud vessel to charred skeleton. One shivering survivor said:

"The fire broke out in the woman's lounge, next to the top deck.

"What caused it? I dunno—neither does anybody else. Some says lightning. Maybe so. Might be right at that. The flames broke out without warning—anyhow nobody saw the fire bust loose—and they swept through the passengers' quarters like a roaring nor'easter.

"I was in the crew's quarters when the first bit of smoke eddied through. You could hear the flames crackle instantly.

"Then hell broke loose.

"I can't talk about it—tell it—but I'll remember that picture to my dying day.

2 Dead in Strike Riots in Madrid

Madrid, Sept. 8 (AP)—A woman and a policeman were killed, a laborer critically wounded and scores of police and strikers injured in strike riots here today.

The municipal guards were ordered into action as the government widened the mobilization of its forces to reopen commerce and transportation, shut down by extremists.

UNIONS WAIT STRIKE TEST ON MONDAY

By Associated Press

Washington, Sept. 8—Francis J. Gorman, chairman of the textile strike committee, took cognizance today of reports that many mills would reopen next week with a statement that "we welcome the test on Monday."

Emerging from a second conference with President Roosevelt's board of inquiry, Gorman said the strike would continue.

He explained a previous declaration that the union would accept no arbitration proposals until all mills were closed as a desire "to have our negotiations in an atmosphere of peace."

Decisions were to be made today on possible extension of the textile walk out to all miscellaneous divisions in the industry not yet affected by the general order.

OTHERS AFFECTED

These would include silk and rayon dyers, upholstery and velvet workers and hosiery workers not operating under union contracts.

At the same time, Governor John G. Winant of New Hampshire, chairman of the Presidential board, said:

"We are making satisfactory progress in enlightening ourselves on the situation."

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, who has summoned representatives of the Federation's 108 international unions here next week to discuss ways and means of assisting the strikers, was to confer with the board late today.

While a week-end lull descended on the strike, there were indications of renewed activity on both sides on Monday. Some manufacturers are ready to reopen their plants. Strike leaders plan new picketing campaigns.

Organized labor swung solidly behind the striking workers as President William Green of the American Federation of Labor called all international unions into a conference next week to shape plans for support of the strike. He denied there would be a general walkout.

In South Carolina, scene of much violence in the present conflict, the way was cleared for the declaration of a state of insurrection when Governor Ibra C. Blackwood issued a proclamation against unlawful meetings, a preliminary move required by statute, if martial law is to be declared.

13 From Here Planned Cruise

At least 13 Boston residents, including two young women from the registry of motor vehicles, had planned to sail from New York today on the ill-fated Ward liner Morro Castle, according to tourist agencies here.

Many of the Havana-bound travellers, who missed disaster by just one sailing, had already left for New York last night or were planning to take early trains today.

Abraham Cohen of Hartford, Conn., escaped from the burning Morro Castle with his wife by swimming ashore with aid of a life preserver. He is shown as he appeared when he played football for Dartmouth.

New England Couple Swim on One Life Preserver

New Englanders aboard the ill-fated steamship Morro Castle, some of whom have not been heard from as yet, lived in Boston, Bedford, Fall River, Providence, Worcester, Hartford, Springfield, Pawtucket and Shrewsbury.

One of the most dramatic features of the tragedy was the swimming to shore on one life preserver of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Cohen of Hartfard, Conn. When the disaster swept the ship, Mr. and Mrs. Cohen raced from their cabin.

Mr. and Mrs. Cohen were were returning from their honeymoon when the disaster overtook their "Ship of Dreams."

Cohen is manager of a department store in Hartford. When he attended Dartmouth College he was a member of the varsity football team and was also a prominent basketball player.

Mrs. Cohen was Miss Harriet Bacharach before her marriage.

Abraham Cohen, who shared a life preserver with his wife and swam eight miles to shore from the burning Morro Castle, was a Dartmouth varsity football star half a dozen years ago, fellow alumni here recalled today.

SCOUTED YALE

Cohen, who had already won football fame at Hartford, Conn., high school, was quarterback on his freshman team at Dartmouth, then won his letter in the same position on the varsity.

After graduation from college he "scouted" Yale teams for Dartmouth for several seasons.

SWIM 8 MILES

Six hours after their dive the couple staggered up on the beach, eight miles distant, and collapsed. Life guards and coast guards rushed to their aid and revived them.

Other New Englanders aboard the burning vessel were:

Miss Florence Roberts, 24, of 47 Hancock st., Pawtucket, saved.

Miss Louise Taubert, 24, of 10 Parade st., Providence, saved.

Miss Floride LeHoche, 26, of 154 Freeborn st., East Providence, saved.

Addis H. Daly of 20 Tiptop st., Brighton, member of the crew, saved.

Miss Agnes D. Berry of Springfield, unreported.

Miss Margaret V. Cotter of Springfield, saved.

Miss Ethel Knight of Shrewsbury, unreported.

Miss Gladys Knight of Shrewsbury, unreported.

Miss Grace Fitzgerald of 30 Hollywood st., Worcester, unreported.

Miss Evelyn Fitzgerald, 30 Hollywood st., Worcester, unreported.

Milton Listic of 398 Lake ave., Worcester, unreported.

Daly is 28 and a student at St. Bonaventure's Seminary, New York, studying to be a priest. His sister lives at the Brighton address. He obtained a job on the Morro Castle for the summer months. His parents live in Bangor, Maine.

BRIGHTON BOYS ABOARD

Joseph Kelliher, 30, and Richard W. Kelliher, 19, both of 111 Bennett street, Brighton, were aboard the Morro Castle as head waiter and bellboy, respectively.

Richard Kelliher joined the ship only a month ago, according to his brother, Jeremiah Kelliher, who is employed at 15 Congress street.

At least 14 others from this section, including Helen Cussens, 20 Birch road, Watertown, and Kay Nagel, 865 Harrison avenue, Boston, planned to sail from New York today on the ship, according to tourist agencies here.

Many of the Havana-bound prospective passengers had already left Boston to meet the ill-fated liner in New York

Miss Florence Roberts, of 47 Hancock street, Pawtucket, was among the first to be saved in the disaster. She is the daughter of a store owner in Pawtucket and was among the only three persons booked in that section for the cruise.

Albert Sorel, a seaman aboard the ship, who has been saved, lived at 1691 Bay street, Fall River with his father, sister and brother. Sorel, who is 32 years old, has been working on ocean liners for the past eight years.

A Boston Evening American reporter informed his family of his safety and a pall of gloom and worry was lifted from the home.

Listen, World!

by ELSIE ROBINSON

Ever grow tired of being "Just Yourself"? Ever wish you could be one of those glamorous creatures you follow through book or screen? Then why not be a Different Self? Why go on living in the same drab shell of life?

Elsie Robinson

You can, of course, be an entirely different person. Without moving away from the place where you now live, without working at a different job, without possessing a dollar more money, you can still be an entirely different person.

You weren't born to be the person you are. You have in you the makings of many different personalities. You might have become almost any sort of a person you wished. You may still develop new Selves of whose existence you do not now dream—experience new sensations which have never entered your comprehension.

• • •

I often think of a woman I knew very well. Bred in a New England environment, she had become a sort of gray and white person. Her manners were prim, her disposition cool and controlled, her days lacking in excitement, her home—though restful—entirely colorless.

When I first knew her she was about 27, a pallid, mousy woman who already seemed 40. She dressed, habitually, in soft browns, grays and black, made with extreme simplicity by a rather old-fashioned pattern. Everything she did or had was good, but monotonously practical and plain.

Sometimes I suspected that her thoughts did not entirely conform with her outer life—that she knew hungers and rebellions which were far from mousy. But if so, she did not discuss them.

• • •

At about this time another woman, returning from Europe, gave her a dress. It was a Paris model which the traveler had bought for herself, but having grown stouter was unable to wear. A gorgeous thing, but entirely unsuitable, we thought, for my friend.

For one thing, it was an evening dress, and she never went out in the evenings. Besides, the material and cut were fantastic—a magnificent velvet, heavy and glowing as molten metal, of a rich wine color. It was made in a strange, gypsy fashion—the skirt flowing in great folds from the tight bodice, which was encrusted in dull gold.

• • •

My friend stared aghast as we opened the box and the glorious garment spilled across the table, flaunting its exotic splendor in a quiet, shadowed room.

"Did you ever see anything so ridiculous?" she cried. "Imagine me wearing a thing like that!"

Still smiling, she slipped it on—and we both stood breathless. She was transfigured! Against that rich beauty her mousy hair was pale gilt, her skin the creamy texture of a magnolia, her eyes dark, brooding pools. The change was incredible! Another Self had emerged—a Self neither of us had seen before!

There is not space to tell all that dress did to my friend's life, but the record runs like a fairy tale. From that day both her appearance and program changed. Gradually even her house was transformed.

• • •

That one adventure into beauty released a whole new personality—a vivid, passionate personality, hungry for color and music—reaching eagerly toward all the lovely abundance of life.

Yet she was not really a new person. That other self had been locked within her all those years.

There is just such another self locked in each one of us. Adventuring selves—romantic selves—braver, lovelier, livelier selves than the world has ever seen. Each human being is a treasure chest of undeveloped Selves.

Why do we go on, year after year, wearing drab personalities when we might swagger through life like jeweled Kings and Queens?

FRAULEINS WIN LYNN 'BARON'S' LOVE

HUB SCHOOLS DUE TO OPEN THURSDAY

Deaf children of Boston will be able to attend school with their more fortunate playmates if an experiment to be tried at the Horace Mann School, Roxbury, during the year, beginning Thursday, proves a success.

A room in the school has been equipped with electrical apparatus, leading to an instrument which is pressed against the earbone of the pupil and which, in turn, is connected by wires with a microphone on the teacher's desk.

With the aid of this miniature broadcasting system, it is possible for the child, whose deafness is from an eardrum to hear every word spoken by the instructor.

The new $1,284,000 Jeremiah E. Burke high school at Grove Hall will be occupied for the first time on Thursday.

Additions to two other schools will be ready for service. They include 23 new rooms at the William B. Rogers school, Hyde Park, and a 17-room addition to the Joseph H. Barnes school, East Boston, which cost $349,000.

Another innovation in the school building program this year is the enclosed fire escape at the Wait school, South End.

There are 323 school buildings in Boston. Of these five have but one room 21 have two rooms, two have three rooms, 27 have four rooms, and 268 have five or more rooms.

There are 226 elementary schools, 73 junior high schools, and 25 senior highs.

POLITE THIEVES TELL REGRETS

Leaving behind them a note of polite, though ungrammatical, regrets, "gentlemen" burglars drilled two safes and ransacked 17 business offices tody in the Globe Theater Building, Wshington street, South End.

Biggest haul made was from the fifth floor headquarters of the W. & L. Engineering Company, where the burglars obtained several hundred dollars from a cement-lined vault.

Entry to the building was made through a rear window, reached by a fire escape.

The "regrets" note left by the burglars read:

"Sorry, we can't stay no longer. The NRA Kid."

Parley at Babson Park Set to Open

Business men from all parts of the United States will gather at Babson Park, Wellesley, during the four days beginning next Wednesday, to attend the 21st annual national business conference. The theme of this year's conference will be a discussion of the effect of government regulation under the New Deal upon business and investments.

It's Nazi Maids Who Win 'Baron's' Heart

MRS. RICHARD D. ELY "BARON" VON BLOMBERG SHEILA O'DONOVAN ROSSA

"Baron" Frary von Blomberg, the former plain "Bill" Frary of Lynn, is shown above as he assisted in charity fete with two Boston belles, Mrs. Richard D. Ely and Sheila O'Donovan Rossa. While he is the soul of baronial charm in his meetings with the fair sex here, the "baron" admitted his affections have been centered on two German frauleins, one of them of the nobility. Collette Ordered to Hurry Home, But She Has Bridal Plans

By Universal Service

San Francisco, Sept. 8—Unless Collette Mulvihill Green leaves San Francisco immediately and returns to her parents, District Attorney Matthew Brady will take steps to have her made a ward of the juvenile court.

This was the startling announcement made by Brady after a conference with Deputy District Attorney Edward Leonard, who has charge of juvenile cases.

TOO LIVELY, HE SAYS

Brady's statement follows:

"I have enough problems to handle without adding Collette Mulvihill to the list. I am particularly interested in having this girl returned to her parents before any further complications may result because of her behavior.

"And it would be well, in my judgment, for her to leave the community immediately and return to her people. If she refuses to do this I believe it to be my duty to use the powers of my office to protect her and others with whom she may come in contact."

In discussing his statement, Brady said she is too lively for this community.

Collette, the eloping 17-year-old Pittsburgh heiress, meantime had decided to prolong her bay region sojourn and become the Pandora of the local wrestling industry.

She might even go so far as to marry a member of the groan and grimace syndicate, with Hardy Krushkamp as the obect of her bountiful affection at the moment, although the Ohio State behemoth up to a late hour had done nothing but look blank at the proposition.

HAS OTHER PLANS

And Collette has a lot of other ideas, too, in this order:

She has cancelled her reservations on the steamship, on which she planned to sail for Honolulu tomorrow.

She wants a Reno divorce, because to get an anulment of her marriage to her truck-driving bridegroom, Tommy Green of Pittsburgh, would require having him in Reno.

She is through with night clubs.

And, in between "rassling" poses with Krushkamp, in which he wore trunks and she a bathing suit that would hardly make a pinafore for a mosquito, Collette announced plans to "establish training quarters for domestic life in a big way" at a cabin in the Black Point hills.

GOING TO MARRY

In between a demonstration of a headlock and a scissors hold with her gigantic sparring partner, she panted:

"I'm going to take Hardy along. But it will be perfectly respectable. We'll take Millard Rauh Krushkamp's manager) who was beaming on the sidelines) and his wife, Tiny, along."

She was asked:

"So you're going to marry Hardy?"

She retorted, while Hardy looked blanker than usual:

"Sure—maybe—yes. My other marriages were all kind of secret, but this one will be all nice and public."

FRARY RETURNS FROM GERMANY MINUS TITLE

Modestly fluttering his long-lashed eyelids under a self-provoked limelight of publicity, Baron Frary von Blomberg, once "just plain Bill" Frary, Lynn press-agent, returned home today after a tour of Germany.

Whereupon he announced that notwithstanding exposure to the cream of Boston's society debs, he had succumbed to the charms of a couple of German frauleins—one with a title.

RANK ABOLISHED

And the funniest part was that his announcement was accompanied by the news that Baron Bill isn't a baron at all. In fact, he is no better entitled than the ennobled girl of his dreams.

The German republic, in 1919, abolished "all distinctions and privileges of rank."

The "baron," in case you don't remember, was adopted here a year or so ago by Baroness Adelhaid von Blomberg of the Back Bay. It took some time to iron out the legal difficulties, on account of the baroness' sister objecting, but the adoption was finally allowed.

Then Frary took off for Germany to view his baronial estates, to see his kinsman, General Werner von Blomberg, Hitler defense minister, and to get the folks at home an inside view of Der Feuhrer Hitler.

He landed in New York yesterday. Waterfront reporters, dispatched to get a momentous interview, or something, met William. Then he told all.

The "baron" hadn't really gotten the "inside" on Hitler, because, he said, his interview was limited to a brief introduction. He had received a pleasant reception from General von Blomberg, although he really didn't expect it.

SEES HITLER

But the Girls!

This business about the German bride is what intrigues Frary. The young "baron" said:

"My foster mother, Baroness Adelheid Marie von Blomberg, wants me to get married. I have two German girls in view—one of them has a title—my foster mother introduced us. The other one—I just met her accidentally."

The baron learned that economic conditions in the Reich are as bad as pictured in press dispatches. Germans themselves know little of what is going on, he believes. Asked what the baronial castle looked like, he replied:

"The Blomberg Castle? It's a large building with vast acres around it. My lawyers are looking into its value. And, it seems, that I assumed a lot of responsibilities I hadn't bargained for—I have to go back once a year."

Workers Team Up on 2 Good Feet

Two Malden ERA workers assisted each other out of a trench in which both had been injured and then proceeded to assist each other to aid.

Jacob Satin, 50, of Webster street and Maxwell Albert, 29, of Bryant street, both of Malden, were carrying a heavy plank when it was struck by a rock and knocked from their hands. Albert's left foot was injured and Satin's right foot was injured. But between them they had one good pair of feet so they teamed up and reached other employes.

NEW YORK

DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 8—It is 3 a. m. and sleep is fugitive. A big chair at the window is inviting. In front of the Park Lane a taxi driver is hunched over a tabloid, the only wisp of human life within eye range. The break of dawn offers a rare moment for introspection—to talk to one's self.

O. O. McIntyre

Awareness is tingling in the dead, black hours. Somewhere a ship is in trouble at sea. Somewhere the first faint cry of life. Life, death, life, death. Like a tick-tock-tack. One morning at 3 a. m. I stood in front of the Phillips House in Dayton, O., broke, jobless, hungry.

To go home or stick it out was the question. Pride wins most of our battles and I stuck it out. Later I used to go to that corner and bestow an affectionate self approval. A good old boy, huzzah! It's stimulating to cheer one's self on now and then. That is faith, the mountain-moving faith.

The red-haired girl in the rathskellar helped in those days. No matter what I ate she punched out a 15-cent check. The punch was heart-shaped. I used to think about her. Once I said: "I have passes to Olga Nethersole tomorrow night." She pointed to a wheel chair near her cage and smiled wistfully. I did not know.

There was the bar-tender with the liontamer's roach at Kramer and Bell's in Kansas City. With his diamond screw-pin stud, highly glossed white shirts and serpent-head ring with greenstone eyes, he seemed abreast of life and stepping high. People called him Nick. He came from Australia and was the first person I ever heard say "Very good, sir!" with mounting inflection. He would say to me: "What'll it be Guv-ner?" Nobody has ever made me feel as important as Nick. I was 19.

Dolly De Shay sang in an Over-the-Rhine concert hall in Cincinnati. She was brazenly maewestish. A glad girl. Hair chemically yellow, buxom, and a bright gold tooth. She blew kisses to roysterers at soggy tables ringed with many glasses. One Sunday I saw her driving in a Stanhope in Eden Park with a pasty-faced and weazened runt. He wore a white silk shirt with a big breast-pocket monogram in purple. They said he was her man. They exuded a sinister gloss I never forgot. I was 21.

In East Liverpool, O. there was a handsome young Irish copper, Hughie McDermott—he's the commissioner now, I believe—kind to me when I was on the $15-a-week police beat there for a morning paper. One wintry night some toughs were dusting up around the pottery kilns. I went with Hughie. He waded into a nest of them and mowed them down. I stood on a lumber pile and watched. Back at headquarters he said, "McIntyre and I cleaned them up." The story got around I was handy with my dukes. Rival reporters thawed a bit. I took to talking a little out of the side of my mouth. I was 23.

Life's most thrilling moment I think was coming out of the Pennsylvania station in the noonday sunshine for the first glimpse of New York. The excitement of that ride over Thirty-Fourth street and up the avenue of avenues atop a swaying green bus. They were lunching at the flower boxed windows of the great Waldorf. Near the library I saw Caruso in an ensemble of green. In front of Delmonico's a cavalier was helping Nora Bayes—no less—into a hansom. On the portico of the old Savoy I saw silver champagne buckets flashing at the table side. Here was the top of the world. I was 24.

Name in gilt on a magazine editorial door. A plump stenographer who talked Brooklynese. Literary figures I never expected to see, drifting to other offices—Bob Davis, Rex Beach, Harris Merton Lyon, Rheta Childe Door, Fannie Hurst, James Montgomery Flagg, James Oppenheim, Isaac Marcossen. The luncheon table at Keene's in the West 30's. McGraw's billiard parlor and the flashy sports who hung out there. And the day Ray Long and I came breezily back from lunch to find glum bailiffs sitting around. All out of jobs again. I was still 24.

• • •

A wan light streaks the darkling day. I hear the daily diapasons from many kitchens. The dog, in waking-up bewilderment, comes in sleepily to stretch and roll. The elevator man in the back, a ringer for David Warfield, even to dialect, leaves something or other outside the door. There's a windy telegram, too, from S. Jay Kaufman and Robert Reud rainbowing a new theatrical promise. Today I'm aged—well, I'm old enough to know better than to sit blinking toward a sun-up trying to write airy prosits to days agone!

"Sell the Politician," Zaharoff's Chief Aim

This is the second of a series of articles giving the picturesque background of Sir Basil Zaharoff, exposed in the Washington munitions hearings as world arms czar and merchant of death.

By Ernest J. Hopkins

Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service, Inc

The prevailing version of the boyhood of Europe's most mystery-shrouded figure, Sir Basil Zaharoff, the master-plotter of the munitions industry — now revealed as Spanish agent for American submarines—was given to the world by his life-long friend, Etienne Skuludis dean of Greek politicians.

Sir Basil Zaharoff

For that reason, it is received with skepticism in Europe. But no single fact about this extraordinary man's life seems other than legendary.

THROWN INTO PRISON

By the Skuludis version, Basil in his boyhood worked for his uncle Sevastopoulos, in Constantinople The uncle held up what Basil regarded as his share of the profits, o young Zaharoff helped himself rom the till. He fled to London, here he was arrested, charged ith theft, and confined for months Old Bailey.

At his trial, as he was being led into court in despair, the warden threw a cloak over his shoulders—and in the pocket of the cloak was a missing contract, in Uncle Sevastopoulos' handwriting, showing the division of spoils had been fair! He was acquitted, and went to Athens.

And there, the pretty legend runs, the future "merchant of death" fell in love. A journalist named Xenos, whose sweetheart Zaharoff won, became his enemy. One day in an Athens paper appeared a venomous account of how Basil Zaharoff had been killed while escaping from a Greek prison.

At all events, Zaharoff was on hand about 1876, when anti-Turkish feeling was running high in Athens, and a Swedish sea-captain, who sold arms in a small way for the then modest Nordenfelt (English), gunmaking concern, came there on business.

DEALT WITH BOTH SIDES

This captain wanted a guide and interpreter, and it was Skuludis who got Zaharoff the job. Zaharoff had found his life work at last—selling death-machines to governments—then at a salary of $25 a week, plus commissions.

And it was then that he performed his famous feat of peddling—some say giving—a Nordenfelt submarine to the Greek government, then going to the Turks and prying loose a contract for two submarines. The "System Zaharoff" was on its way.

Out of that war, young Zaharoff emerged with commissions in six figures from sales of Nordenfelt equipment to the warriors, including a fat order for doubling the size of the Greek army. He had learned his lesson: "Sell the politicians—and remember to deal with both sides."

(The third article of this series will be published Monday.)

DORIS DUKE HAS $2 BUS RIDE

Whether or not Miss Doris Duke, richest girl in the world, knows how the other half lives, today she at least knows how the other half travels.

In a swaying bus with 11 other passengers, the heiress of the Duke tobacco millions rode into Boston from Scarboro, Maine, after a Boston & Maine airplane, in which she was traveling from Bangor, was forced down by fog.

None of the other passengers knew the identity of the multi-million dollar beauty until she left the bus at Park square and was met by her uniformed chauffeur. She paid $2 for her bus ticket.

Stopping at Portsmouth with her fellow-travelers, Miss Duke had a sandwich and a cup of coffee at the lunch counter.

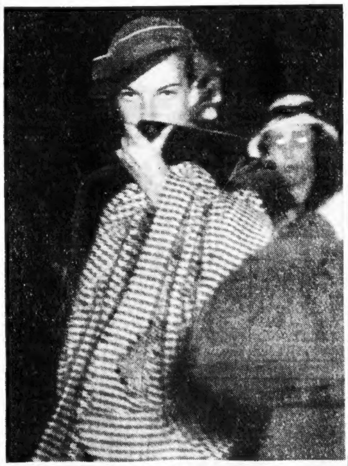
"I'm awfully glad you stopped here," she told Driver Joseph Scruton, "I was starving."

WOMEN VOTERS HOLD PARLEY

Behind closed doors, Democratic women district leaders held a conference in a Boston hotel, with Dr. Helen I. D. McGillicuddy, vice-chairman of the state Democratic committee, presiding.

Dr. McGillicuddy was scheduled to become chairman of the committee, September 1, but Joseph A. Maynard, the present holder of that office, recently announced that he would remain as chairman until the primaries, September 20.

Heiress Shy on Bus Trip



Doris Duke, above, heiress to an immense fortune, slipped quietly into Boston last night after a bus trip from Portland, Me. En route, she stopped for a snack and coffee with the bus driver, making it a Dutch treat and paying for her own. Her name now is linked in a romance with "Jimmy" Cromwell, society's ex-boxer. OFFICIALS LINKED IN CWA EXPOSE

Disclosure involving a state senator and at least one Boston city councillor were anticipated today in connection with the fraudulent issue and forgery six months ago of CWA work slips.

Evidence, gathered by agents of the Department of Justice, will be presented to the federal grand jury next Tuesday.

It was reported that CWA positions had been given out by a high state and city official in return for promises of political support.

MAN DEAD, WIFE DYING IN ROW

Fall River, Sept. 8—A long marital quarrel between Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Martin ended in tragedy, with the husband killing himself and with his wife in a serious condition at the Truedale Hospital with a bullet wound, today.

Martin shot his wife in the thigh and then turned the gun on himself in the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Allien of New York, on the Fall River-Providence line in North Swansea.

Neighbors told police the couple had quarreled frequently for the past three months, after Martin was discharged by Allien, for whom he worked as caretaker for the past 10 years. Allien, according to neighbors, told Martin he could remain in a small cottage on the estate with his wife and four children until the latter part of this month. The children range from 7 to 16 years of age.

Youth Breaks Neck in Dive

Springfield, Sept. 8—William Hood, 18, of Cleveland, O., was critically injured while diving in in a pond here. He suffered a fracture of the neck,

DANCE MUSIC FROM AROUND THE WORLD BY RADIO

A more or less hot harmony contest, where in the smooth tunes of the parlor organ, airplane-fabric drum and harmonica vies with those of the latest exponents of rhumba and tango, will be aired tonight (WNAC) from 8 to 8:30 o'clock.

In other words the subtle syncopation of old Doc Poulter's Knights of the Grey Underwear society, favorites of Little America, will have a battle of music with nine of the most celebrated orchestras in the world. Then there's a ryythmic rhumba band from Buenos Aires.

The other stellar bands, brought to the CBS network by land wires and short wave, will hail from London, Honolulu, Chicago, San Francisco, New York, Los Angeles and Atlantic City.

Glen Gray and The Casa Loma orchestra, for years one of the premier bands in the country, will have a hard task holding their high rating in the eyes and ears of the radio world. Said concert should draw much comment on the respective merits of various orchestras.

* * *

Rossini's famous overture to "William Tell" will afford the opening theme on tonight's (WNAC) broadcast of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra at 9:00 o'clock. Other classics to be rendered by the orchestra under the direction of Victor Kolar are:

Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," "Melody in F," "Prelude in C Sharp Minor," the beautiful "Blue Danube Waltz" and other popular favorites.

Claude Reis, tenor, will be guest soloist tonight (WNAC) with Freddie Rich's Manhattan Serenaders airing at 8:30. "Moonglow" will be the highlight of Claude's bit in the program.

Tomorrow at 10:15 (WNAC) brings the 105th airing of the Sunday Advertiser comics, rounding out two years of unbroken programs given by "Uncle Bob" (Ed Young) Houghton. Guest stars on the anniversary program will be the 15-year-old Slezinger twins of Everett, John and Herbert.

The twins will feature "Dear Old Home Folks" (words and music by good old Ed Young) with the talented Ruth Hanson accompanying them.

Tonight brings around another ERA Opera Orchestra Concert to be broadcast (WHDH) at 8:15. Highlights include a solo, "Cavalleria Rusticana," sung by Elvira Baratta, and a duet, "La ci darem la mano," rendered by Helene Norwood, soprano, and Giuseppe Gozzi, baritone.

* * *

CBS production man, Jean Hight, departs next week for vacationland...Frank Novak, leader of the Dixie Circus band, has written two numbers for the final presentation of the program Monday...Georgie Price recently bought a seat on the Exchange and is now spending half of his time in high finance and the other half "airing"...Buddy Rogers, who is starred with Jeannie Lang on those Musical Romances, can play 16 different instruments (we'll bet he can't imitate the Four Hawaiians)...Everett Marshall (he of the pleasing voice) is one of the few singing artists who does not use a mike double—his dramatic experience in opera and musical comedy being the reason...We understand that Spring is well on its way in the Antarctic and that Bill Haines has been voted out of the Knights of the Gray Underwear by virtue of his changing to "summery light things."

X-9 PUP NAMES CLOSE TONIGHT

It had to come at last, and now it is set for midnight tonight—the end of the Boston Evening American Secret X-9 Club puppy contest.

Midnight tonight is the deadline for submitting of names in the contest for the cute Eskimo pup at Norumbega Park. Any names submitted by mail must bear a postmark not later than midnight.

The judges will try to have the winner selected in time for the regular weekly broadcast of the X-9 Club Tuesday, from 6:30 to 6:45 p. m. over Station WAAB. Watch for further announcement.

In the few hours left—if you have not submitted your choices as to names—send them to Secret Agent Puppy, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop square, Boston.

This Ear That Air

By N. F. T.

Busy broadcasting schedules are in the ozone offing. Edwin C. Hill is getting ready for a strenuous "Human Side of the News" season of networking. He starts his three time weekly quarter-hour (WNAC) one week from Monday, to be heard also on Wednesday and Friday evenings thereafter from 8:15 until 8:30 p. m. But he's not far from being the only one.

September 17th brings "Amos 'n Andy" into the nightly program picture again (WBZ) with the "Fresh Air Taxicab Company" left behind for good. New fields of endeavor will occupy "the boys" this fall. However, they're keeping their proposed "business" enterprise a deep, dark secret. They will, it is pleasing to learn, retain "Madame Queen" and all the rest of their popular cronies, whatever else they do.

"N. F. T."

* * *

On the very next day, meaning September 18, the throaty Bing Crosoby voice ventures back into broadcasting for a weekly Tuesday night turn (WNAC) slated for 9 to 9:30 airing.

* * *

Burns and Allen renew their old coast to coast spot (WNAC) as of 9:30 Wednesdays, starting the 19th. Strangely, no word is in hand as to whether or not Guy Lombardo and his orchestral outfit shall supply the melody background. Here's hoping they are included. Guy has grabbed off his own "Lombardo Land" offering recently and may be too busy to consider coming in behind "George and Gracie" when they resume radioing.

* * *

Joe Penner, also that formerly famous "The Shadow" fellow, the "Easy Aces" team and "Singin' Sam" are all October comebacks. Word of their schedule at a later date.

* * *

There's a new talent hunt underway on the heels of the recent "Hollywood Hotel" program search conducted across the country, only to be copped by a Chicago lass. This time the sponsors permit only those who have never been on a network program to take part. Moreover, the sponsors desire that radio writers for the press shall suggest who the artists are to be auditioned. What a break! At last the earcupping scribes are asked to name a "mike" man or miss with possibilities. More about that another day also.

* * *

Virginia Hill, substituting on the air for cookery counsel Martha Lee yesterday morning (WAAB) stumped me for a minute with an inquiry as to the plural of squash. Was it to be squashes or squash? Frankly I'm not certain yet, help!

* * *

Hub band boss boys are blossoming. Ranny Weeks and his music makers appearing at Keiths, Charley Hector and his men booked by the Loew folks and Joe Solomon back Cocoanut Groving. All three hint they have promising local radio sponsorship in prospect as well.

Tune Slowly for Europe

You Hear Him on the Radio

BENNY McLAUGHLIN

Benny McLaughlin . . . The reason back of the invention of the piano . . . Because Benny plays the piano that way . . . On stage . . . As well as via the air . . . And probably always will.

Here is a product of Cambridge . . . Dated April 30 in 1902 . . . And he went to work on the keys . . . Both white and black . . . When he was only seven . . . Defeating them when hardly eight . . . And having them under full control ever since.

Benny . . . His full name is Bernard Howard McLaughlin . . . Attended the Cambridge public schools . . . And then Somerville High School . . . Where he reduced the piano to its lowest dimensions . . . Even making it cringe . . . And then looked for other piano worlds to conquer . . . Finding them in music publishing houses . . . When he was only 16.

From 1918 to 1930 . . . That's 12 years . . . Even in a music publishing house . . . Benny balladed and fox-trotted and waltzed . . . And went through the other tempos . . . Including clashing six-eights . . . While vaudeville singers tried out numbers . . . And hangers-on came in to listen.

He also started to write . . . And turned out "From Sunrise to Sunset" . . . And "What More Can I Say" . . . And numerous others . . . As well as writing special lyrics for stage notables . . . Including Dorothy Stone, Phil Baker, Frank Fay, J. C. Flippen and others . . . And he had played meanwhile . . . In the old WNAC studios . . . For Ruth Etting . . . Of whom you may have heard.

For several years he accompanied two chaps on the air . . . But the names slip his mind . . . And he had an air act of his own . . .

And now he is riding high with a new team . . . Alice Blue, Joe Dunn and Benny McLaughlin . . . With this team's new series starting tonight . . . At 7 o'clock . . . Over WEEI.

Benny found time to marry in 1921 . . . And he now has a boy . . . William . . . Who protests at piano lessons . . . So what can you do.

Monday's Radio Personality Portrait will be that of Charles Winninger, or Captain Showboat.

M-G-M PLANS NEW ALL-STAR FILM -:- NEW BILLS OPEN AT THREE HOUSES

Lights and Shadows

By
—George Holland—

Half of the six solid hits of the past season in New York will open in Boston within the next four weeks, and the Boston theatrical season 1934-35 from this distance shapes up as similar to those of the past few years when most of the good things came early in the calendar.

Censor Herbert McNary

New York's big six of last season were "As Thousands Cheer," and "Roberta," musicals, "Ah, Wilderness," "Dodsworth," "Sailor Beware" and "She Loves Me Not." The last two will probably not be seen hereabouts. "Sailor Beware" would have trouble in adjusting its lines and situations to the Boston standard of theatrical propriety. "She Loves Me Not" has been made into a picture which has been released. "Dodsworth," with Walter Huston starring, has not completed its New York run. This dramatization of the Sinclair Lewis novel is a distinct possibility for later in the season, and will probably play the Colonial theater.

* * *

"As Thousands Cheer," no doubt most of the several million persons in the Boston radius knows by now, opens Monday night at the Shubert theater. It will come to town intact, that is, exactly as it was played for 50 weeks at the Music Box theater. The slight flurry caused by Censor McNary's objection to the "Society Wedding of the Season" scene has subsided. The good censor gave the matter further thought, and kindly enough agreed that the famous revue should be permitted to open in its uncensored form.

* * *

It seems important to print the above item, because a column in this same space some days ago told about Censor McNary's misgivings about "Society Wedding." Treasurer Arthur Manley of the Shubert theater reproached your correspondent for his zeal in informing the public that the show was subject to change.

"Everyone in the line has asked if the show was going to be changed," he remarked, quite sorrowfully. I think Treasurer Manley exaggerated a teeny bit. There must be some readers of other newspapers who attend the legitimate theater.

At any rate, the sketch which the censor was concerned about will be played. But it WAS slated for the ashcan.

* * *

After "As Thousands Cheer," the next of the New York hits scheduled for Boston is "Roberta," which comes with Fay Templeton, Tamara, Odette Myrtil and the Jerome Kern music including "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes," to the Colonial Monday, Septtember 24. The following Monday will see George M. Cohan and the Eugene O'Neil play, "Ah, Wilderness," installed at the Plymouth.

If she can sing, the good-looking dancer at the Cocoanut Grove, is a made-to-order successor to Mary Lawlor (Mrs. Lyn Lary) for those musical comedy parts where the ingenue high-kicks herself into the juvenile's affections—singing a little every once in a while. The girl's name is Roberta Petley, and she performs amazing acrobatics with real grace. Musical comedy igenues aren't supposed to be acrobats, so part of her repertoire will go to waste if and when she gets the big opportunity. But she dances beautifully. Now, if she can sing—Oh, yes, and act!

Versatile Star

David Selznick Will Produce Another 'Dinner at Eight' After 'David Copperfield'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, Sept. 8—The brief European journey Constance Bennett expected will probably lengthen into weeks if she remains at the Marquis de la Falaise's bedside. Late reports from Paris indicate that he is really much sicker than any one thought and his illness has been aggravated by the fact that he was away from any medical aid for so many months while he was filming his second travelogue.

Miss Bennett can take as much time as she needs for it is not necessary for her to report at the Twentieth Century studios until later in the fall when Maurice Chevalier comes back from his beloved Paree. She will play opposite the debonair Frenchman in "The Red Cat" and that ought to be a combination, Chevalier and La Bennett. But wait until you see Chevalier in "The Merry Widow." He is really something!

Louella O. Parsons

* * *

Get ready for another "Dinner at Eight" or "Grand Hotel." David Selznick is again getting ready to collect all the big names on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot to co-star in one big picture. The play he considers worthy of all this expenditure is "The Journey," an original by Fritz Lang, German director, and Oliver H. P. Garrett. This is really all I know about the story with the exception of Selznick's plan to put Joan Crawford, Clark Gable, Wallace Beery, Lionel Barrymore and so forth into this production which will not be made, of course, until "David Copperfield" is out of the way.

* * *

Gladys George, New York actress who married a millionaire and then found that marriage and career do not mix, is on her way to New York. Miss George received permission from Metro-Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to go East and appear in a Brock Pemberton play, "Personal Appearances." While in the East Miss George's friends say she will seek her freedom from Edward Fowler, millionaire paper manufacturer. Interesting after her public statement that a girl can have both a career and a husband.

Gladys George

* * *

Chatter in Hollywood—from a source this column considers unquestionably authentic we learn that Ruth Helms Nagel, ex-wife of Conrad Nagel, will in all likelihood become Mrs. Sidney Franklin in December. Mrs. Nagel who obtained her freedom from her actor husband a month or so ago in Juarez, Mexico, is in the East. She and Mr. Franklin, well known director who was her next door neighbor for so many years, will step to the altar before the new year, according to friends who are in their confidence.

* * *

A Line or Two

Impromptu and charming was Francis Lederer's reply to Rupert Hughes' remark that he didn't know whether or not Max Reinhardt was a good actor. Lederer, asking permission at the Reinhardt dinner to speak, said that Reinhardt was the best actor in the world. He said he knew because he had been a Reinhardt pupil. Traveling cross country all by herself except for her dog, Jobe, Beth Brown landed in Hollywood. Her book "Hobo Girl" has had several queries from film producers, so Miss Brown, who is an experienced author, came west to talk to the film magnates in person. Stopped in to see Sally Eilers and the new Harry Joe Brown heir; he is so like Harry Joe that the likeness, even in a baby less than a week old, is really funny.

Snapshots of Hollywood

NORMA SHEARER, lovely in pale blue chiffon, with ostrich feather coat to match, at the MAX REINHARDT dinner; MARLENE DIETRICH in white, HELEN HEYES in blue, among the attractive women who assembled to do the great producer honor; FRED NIBLO'S address of welcome, surprising even his most ardent admirers; ANITA LOOS, who visited the distinguished visitor at Salzberg, greeted by REINHARDT; also JOHN EMERSON; the ADOLPH ZUKORS, EMANUEL COHEN, EDDIE GOULDING, ROUBEN MAMOULIAN, ERNST LUBITSCH, JOSEF VON STERNBERG among those who welcomed the European producer; EDDIE CANTOR'S matchless wit much appreciated, also RUPERT HUGHES' analysis of Shakespeare; AL JOLSON singing in rare form, getting an embrace from REINHARDT; ELIZABETH ALLEN'S cocktail party a farewell to her husband; WILLIAM O'BRYEN a huge success; MRS. ELSIE TORRENCE, RONALD COLMAN, GLORIA SWANSON, HERBERT MARSHALL, EVELYN LAYE and FRANK LAWTON among those who accompanied LIZ and her husband to the airport; DORIS KENYON'S birthday party went on and on, and everybody had such fun; MRS. EARL ANTHONY by far the best looking matron in our town, helping DORIS celebrate. That's all today. See you Monday.

Stuart Erwin's Triumph in Ace Act on Orpheum Stage

There was a warm welcome for that most engaging of screen comedians, Stuart Erwin, and his lovely and talented wife, June Collyer, at Loew's Orpheum yesterday where they top the new vaudeville bill.

Between the presence of the screen stars and the return of Charlie Hector to the pit with a new and smart orchestra, there was plenty of enthusiasm and a capacity house. On the screen is the delightful rustic romance, "Hideout," with Robert Montgomery and Maureen O'Sullivan in the leading roles.

It tells a charming story, which although cut from the well tried pattern of the city feller and the farmer's daughter, by the freshness of its direction and the ingratiating presence of its co-stars, far tops the usual run of love-in-the-country comedies. Montgomery is a bit of a gangster who picks a Connecticut farmhouse as his hideway, and the pretty daughter of the house as his true love. Mickey Rooney as the kid brother, and that excellent character actress, Elizabeth Patterson, as the country housewife, contribute a great deal to the enjoyment of one of the most entertaining films of the new season.

Stuart Erwin, looking exactly as he has in all the pictures in which you've enjoyed him, together with the very beautiful Miss Collyer, presents an amusing skit which gives the lowdown on marriage as Hollywood sees it. In a gracious curtain acknowledgement, Mr. Erwin said that happily for all concerned, Hollywood marriage had more to commend it than the clever little skit showed. Despite the fact that behind the Orpheum footlights the couple congratulated themselves on having met for the first time since New Year's eve, there is, so Mr. Erwin tells us, just as much home and family life in the movie colony as there is on any Main street. Mr. Erwin's latest screen appearance is in "Chained," now on the screen at Loew's State.

Other acts billed are Maud Hilton in "Funnier Than Ever," "The Five Elgins," Vincent O'Donnell, and the three Dancing R's."

Twins at Gayety

Featured on the new program opening Sunday at the Gayety theater, are the famous Godino Siamese twins and their brides, headlining the five act vaudeville bill. The Godinos are the only living male Siamese twins in the world and were born and educated in Manila.

The screen feature on the program will be "Let's Talk It Over."

Ozzie Nelson and Dietrich at Met

By JOYCE DANA

Honors are divided this week at the Metropolitan, where "The Scarlet Empress," starring Marlene Dietrich, shares the bill with those two popular radio stars, Ozzie Nelson and Harriet Hilliard.

"The Scarlet Empress" is a story of Catherine of Russia, whose career has not only colored the pages of history, but has provided the screen with some of its most brilliant pageantry. For this version the controversial Josef von Sernberg handled the directions, which results in a lot of extremely rococco decorations, and many striking close-ups of the beautiful Dietrich.

Liberties have been taken in all the screen productions based on history, for it is notoriously true that screen stars are glamorous, while lady monarchs more often wielded power in less alluring and far more ruthless manner. Sam Jaffe alone, as the imbecilic Tsar Peter, playing with tin soldiers and condemning men to death for the thrill it brought to his maddened senses, catches the glimmer of truth in his fine portrayal.

* * *

Von Sternberg's direction, while it carries decor to the biggest degree, has been unfortunate for Miss Dietrich. As beautiful as she is, it is impossible to overcome the inanities she is forced to portray. Her heavily obvious emotions, her attempts at coy youthfulness, consisting mostly of wide-eyed and unbecoming open-mouthed wonder, are more than even a great actress could overcome. John Lodge fares much better as the strong and handsome Alexei Louise Dresser has the role of the aging Elizabeth. The costuming is rich, the settings striking and elaborate.

There is plenty of grand entertainment in the new stage presentation which features Ozzie Nelson and his band, together with Harriet Hilliard, in "Rhythmic Rhapsodies." The Nelson brand of music is hot and sweet, with particularly effective arrangements of "Put On Your Old Grey Bonnet," (Harlem fashion), "I Only Have Eyes for You, and "Two Cigarettes In the Dark." Johnnie Bryant does some decidedly clever whistling, imitating claxons and birds of all sorts, and Professor Lambert, billed as the "Mad Wag of the Xylophone" contributed some hilarious moments. The Elida Ballet, Ray Thome, the Three Wizards, the Robbins family, and Fabien Sevitzky and the grand orchestra in "Rubenstein's Melody" are other footlight attractions.

New Crawford Romance at Loew's State

By ANN AMES

If the course of true love ran smoothly, the screen would be the loser. In "Chained," at Loew's State, which reunites Joan Crawford and Clark Gable, there is a story that gives both of them a chance to be noble and self-sacrificing, and to take part in a handsomely dressed production that will delight their many ardent admirers.

The story is of Diane Lovering, who through five years of loyal work has won the love of her millionaire employer, Richard Field. Field's wife refuses to divorce him, even when the trio meets and the cards are laid on the table. Diane decides that love should rule the day, but Field, with her future in the palm of his hand, sends her away to think matters over.

* * *

On shipboard the enterprising Johnnie Smith tries to make her acquaintance in the congenial atmosphere of the bar, but it is his companion, Mike Bradley, wealthy ranch owner returning to the Argentine, who breaks down her carefully built up resistance.

At Bradley's ranch, Diane at last allows her heart to rule, and returns to New York to tell Field the truth. She finds that his wife is in Reno that he has even relinquished his children to marry her, and in a thinly veiled attempt at playing the gold digger she writes Mike that she has decided to marry Field.

After years of believing her a calculating and cold-blooded woman, Bradley discovers that to save one man from despair and disaster she had in a gallant gesture put her own love aside. He, too, weakens when it comes to breaking the news to Field, yet that understanding and incredibly generous husband exits gracefully, leaving the two happy lovers to their Argentian romance and what must be imagined as their everlasting happiness.

* * *

Clarence Brown has done a masterly job in directing the story by Edgar Selwyn, which not only has the advantage of presenting Miss Crawford and Mr. Gable in parts that are consistent with their considerable reputation as the ideal screen lovers, but which has the strong performance of Otta Gruger as the wise and wealthy husband, and Stuart Erwin in a far too brief but extremely clever portrayal as the garrulous Johnnie Smith.

Vaudeville on New Boston Program

By HARRIS MORGAN

Ranny Weeks and his orchestra received an enthusiastic welcome at the RKO Boston yesterday, where the personable young baritone and bandmaster, officiated in the pit at the return of the Keith house to vaudeville.

In addition to his own considerable contribution to the entertainment, Rany had the pleasant task of introducing a notable line-up of varsity stars, with that mad wag, Fred Lightner and his lovely partner, Roscella, topping the bill. Lightner's act is a series of riotously funy skits in which everyone is kidded, including the audience.

Lou Handman, noted song writer, remembered for "Blue," "Puddin' Head Jones" and other song successes, plays some of his biggest hits, with his partner, Flora Levers as assisting vocalist. Other acts billed are Hubert Kinney and his girls; El Cleve and Company in "Impressions"; Smith, Strong and Lee in a droll take-off on the vaudeville of the gay nineties Bankhoff and Cannon, famous team of internationally known eccentric dancers and the Three Rexfords.

* * *

The screen feature is "King Kelly of the U. S. A." starring Guy Robertson of musical comedy fame, Irene Ware and Edgar Kennedy. The story concerns a theatrical producer named Kelly, who is taking a troupe of dancers to Europe. His show is a failure, and in desperation he and his partner, Moran, change contracts with a shipboard acquaintance who has been commissioned as efficiency expert for the mythical kingdom of Belgardia.

Kelly has fallen in love with a strangely aloof young woman who is also a passenger on the boat. When the partners arrive in Belgardia, they realize that they have been nicely duped, since the country is bankrupt and the king is forced to marry off his daughter to a neighboring prince. Kelly boosts the idea, only to discover that the princess is the mysterious girl he met on the boat. But as so frequently happens in plots of comic opera pattern, youth and native wit win out. Kelly puts the country on a paying basis and gets the girl as his reward.

AUSTERE WHITE SATIN fashioned on long, slim lines with V-neck, the bodice quaintly buttoned up the front with tiny satin buttons, very simple, her veil a cloud of tulle, graced the beautiful Mary Weld when she was united in holy matrimony today to Mr. Samuel Huntington Wolcott, Jr. Her arms were filled with stately Easter lilies.

The ceremony took place in the Church of the Good Shepherd in Wareham where the bride and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip B. Weld, reside. Mr. Wolcott is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Wolcott of Milton. The wedding took place at high noon with the Reverends Samuel S. Drury and Arthur Lee Fenderson officiating at the marriage service.

ELIZABETH LODER

Preceding her up the aisle were her sister, Miss Rose Weld, and her bridesmaids, Miss Jessie Leonard, Miss Camilla Moss, Miss Susan Arthur, Miss Polly Potts, and Miss Sybil Say from New York, and Miss Priscilla Saltonstall of Topsfield and Miss Edith Wolcott of Milton, frocked in gowns of yellow crepe with capes lined with orange. They wore large yellow hats trimmed with orange and carried yellow and orange arm bouquets of African daisies.

After the ceremony the reception was held at the home of Mrs. Stephen Weld, grandmother of the bride, in Wareham.

Dicky Conducts an "Inquiry" and Junior and Roderick Explain How They "Scared" Baby Faith

CHAPTER 135

THE PROVERBIAL pin drop would have sounded like the backfire of a motor in Katherine's little sitting room, so "thick" was the silence that followed Dicky's demand of Junior and Roderick that they "come clean" and tell him what they did to frighten Baby Faith into the crying spell, the effects of which Katherine even now was soothing.

Finally the two small boys looked at each other, gulped and then faced Dicky manfully.

"We didn't mean to scare her," Junior said. "We thought we'd make her laugh."

Dicky looked at them sternly. "You don't need to tell me that," he said. "I know you both pretty well, and I'm banking on that. If I thought either of you was capable of deliberately frightening a helpless little baby I would first give you a whipping you'd remember all your lives and then send you to a reform school."

JUNIOR EXPLAINS

I knew that Dicky was unconsciously dramatizing himself, prompted by his paternal fright over Faith's crying spell. But he saw, as I did, how the two boyish faces whitened at his words, and he dropped his savage tone and look immediately.

"But we know you didn't mean to frighten her," he went on, his tone softening. "Nevertheless, you must tell me just what it was you did."

They looked at each other, and then Roderick spoke.

"He's your father," he said. "I suppose you'd better tell him."

A sigh came from the region of Junior's shoe laces, but he took up the small boy's burden and began his confession.

"Well! You see it was this way," he said, and I pulled Dicky's sleeve warningly, as he made an impatient motion. But I did not need to say anything. He knew that I was asking him to let our small son tell his story in his own way, and he looked around the corner of his eye at me in whimsical reassurance.

"Go on," he said, as Junior hesitated.

"Why, we weren't touching the crib at all; see?" Junior said earnestly, with so faithful an imitation of Jerry Ticer's rustic mannerisms that I squirmed inwardly. "Aunt Katherine said we were to watch her but not to touch her, see? And so we stood just as near the crib as we could and not touch it, see? And she was laughing, and cooing, and kicking her heels, and all at once—Rod—I mean I—" he corrected himself confusedly —"thought it would be—"

A CHANGE IN RODERICK

"No you didn't think," Roderick interrupted sturdily. "You wasn't to blame a bit. I thought of it, and I said let's do it. Honest Uncle Dicky, he wasn't to blame."

My heart swelled with pride and pleasure. When Roderick had first come to us he had been a bit shifty, ready to put the blame for his misdeeds upon any other shoulders than his own. But he had proved unusually amenable to loving discipline and I was pardonably gratified at this proof of what sharing our family life at the farm had done for Roderick.

"We both did it." Junior took up the saga again. "You see, we both had 'em in our pockets—Marion always likes to hear 'em pop—and we thought maybe Ruby Pearl would like to hear 'em, too."

"Ruby Pearl!" Dicky ejaculated. "What the dickens—"

"Oh! Oh!" Junior's eyes sought mine agonizedly. "We never meant to call her that where anybody could hear us."

"Never mind now," I said soothingly, giving Dicky's sleeve another tug. "You meant to say that you thought Faith might like to hear—what?"

The two small boys looked at each other again, then, as if by one movement, each right hand went into a trousers' pocket and drew forth a crushed, shapeless brown paper bag. Then each thrust a fist inside and displayed a hole in the bag he held.

"We blew 'em up and hit 'em," Junior said slowly; "first one of us, and then the other. Faith didn't cry at the first one, but at the other one she yelled like everything. One of us just going to run downstairs for Aunt Katherine when she came running in. But are you sure she's all right? Aunt Katherine hasn't brought her out yet."

TO SEE BABY FAITH

"She wants to get her quiet," I told them, and Dicky said impatiently, "Yes, yes, she's all right; but you might have frightened her into something very serious. I'm not going to tell you now what we're going to do about this, except that we're not going to whip you. But we must make you remember that thoughtlessness and carelessness sometimes do more harm than deliberate meanness. Go over to my room, now, and stay there until either your Auntie Madge or I come for you."

Surprisingly, the boys made no move to obey. Instead, Junior said quaveringly:

"Please, mayn't we wait until we see Faith again, and see she's all right?"

HOPE AND ROMANCE CAN REVIVE WHEN JADED HAIR IS BEAUTIFIED

Feathers Afloat on the Fashion

By PRUNELLA WOOD

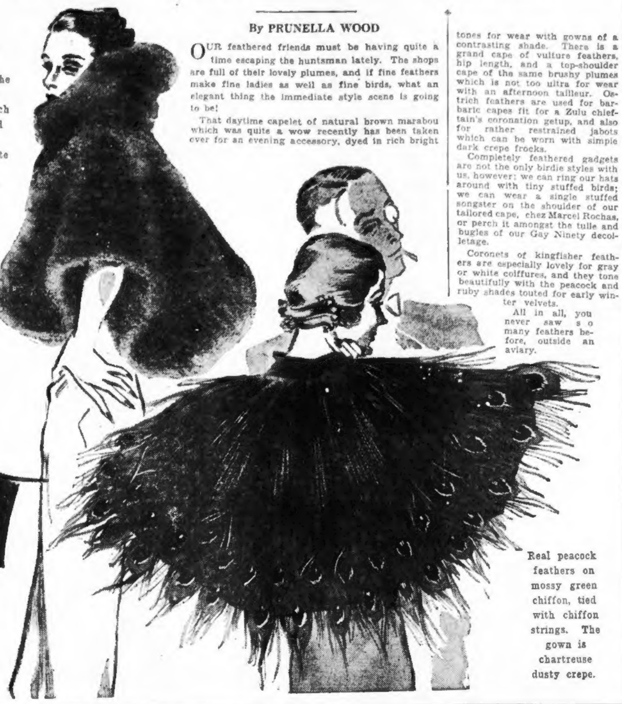
OUR feathered friends must be having quite a time escaping the huntsman lately. The shops are full of their lovely plumes, and if fine feathers make fine ladies as well as fine birds, what an elegant thing the immediate style scene is going to be!

That daytime capelet of natural brown marabou which was quite a wow recently has been taken over for an evening accessory, dyed in rich bright tones for wear with gowns of a contrasting shade. There is a grand cape of vulture feathers, hip length, and a top-shoulder cape of the same brushy plumes which is not too ultra for wear with an afternoon tailleur. Ostrich feathers are used for barbaric capes fit for a Zulu chieftain's coronation getup, and also for rather restrained jabots which can be worn with simple dark crepe frocks.

Completely feathered gadgets are not the only birdie styles with us, however; we can ring our hats around with tiny stuffed birds; we can wear a single stuffed songster on the shoulder of our tailored cape, chez Marcel Rochas, or perch it amongst the tulle and bugles of our Gay Ninety decolletage.

Coronets of kingfisher feathers are especially lovely for gray or white coiffures, and they tone beautifully with the peacock and ruby shades touted for early winter velvets.

All in all, you never saw so many feathers before, outside an aviary.



This fluffy cape, so flattering to the skin, is of marabou which has been dyed a brilliant vermillion. Note the Elizabethan ruff collar.

Real peacock feathers on mossy green chiffon, tied with chiffon strings. The gown is chartreuse dusty crepe.

Use New Tonic Daily Or Weekly

By Juliet Shelby

WHEN AN actress wishes to portray an old character, discouraged and unlovely, she tackles her hair make-up first. She streaks it, she makes it dull looking and she lets it hang about her face in an unkempt fashion. And what a change! Her compelling glamour disappears; years of disappointment are added to her face!

And that is exactly what happens to a woman who neglects her hair. She looks jaded and disappointed — years older than she really is. One look at her and the world surmises that hope and romance have gone out of that woman's life.

Let that same woman beautify her hair, pamper it, coax it back to health and dress it in a flattering manner and she will find life opening up for her. Her very decision to make the most of her natural beauty creates a new expression in her face, in her eyes and in her very manner. And lovely hair will enhance this welcome exchange.

Hair, to be beautiful, must be healthy. You've heard that before. But believe in it. If your hair is lifeless and drab, overdyed or overbleached, do something about it. Don't just sit and wish you were as lovely as Myrna Loy or Ann Harding.

It is an extremely versatile treatment. Oily scalps benefit by it as much as dry scalps. If rubbed on the scalp and steamed for several minutes, it combats excessive oil. If applied to a dry scalp and left on overnight, it helps to lubricate the hair roots and relieve dandruff. In each case you will find your hair scrupulously clean after your shampoo.

This is a tonic men like. It is simple to use and is efficacious. Children whose heads have been exposed to too much sun will find it beneficial in restoring the natural softness and sheen to the hair.

You may learn the name of this special tonic and where it is sold by phoning Juliet Shelby, Liberty 4000. If you prefer writing send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Miss Shelby, Boston Evening American, Boston.

Skin Care During Motor Trip

Question: I am planning a long trip in the near future and I would appreciate knowing what precautions to take so that my skin will cause me a minimum of discomfort. It is very tender and burns easily.—R. I. A., Danvers.

Answer: The best thing to do for your skin is to give it good protective care. Since your skin is the sensitive type, it probably is inclined to dryness, too. Give it plenty of lubricating cream—rich, oil creams that seep into the pores and keep the skin soft, nourished and protected from sun and wind.

Facial Scar

Question: A few years ago my seven-year-old son was severely bitten by a dog. The scar is livid and noticeable. Can you suggest something that will in some way conceal it?

M. C., Boston.

Answer: Since your little son is so very young, it is quite probable that he will outgrow the scars. In the meantime, it can do no possible harm to use soothing creams or lotions or healing ointments on his skin. In fact, since his skin is so sensitive, it might be well to use a soothing lotion as a protection from wind and weather. If I were you, I would also consult a physician about this condition. He might be able to prescribe something, or offer some helpful advice.

Eye Wrinkles

Question: Will you be so good as to tell me how I may take out lines and wrinkles from my skin? It is also becoming a very sallow tan. Please help me. A. L.

Answer: Lines and wrinkles under the eyes may be due to lack of rest and sleep and poor circulation as well as to eye strain and a dry skin. Bathe your eyes frequently with an eye lotion, use compresses of cotton wrung from cold water and drenched with a soothing lotion placed over the eyes. Witch hazel is good, or cold tea. Smooth cream around eyes before placing the compresses, then relax. A good eye tissue cream would be helpful, smoothed gently around the eyes from the inner upper corners describing a circle around the eye.

Use a skin clearing or a mild bleaching cream. A yeast pack is good: made by mixing yeast cakes with milk to a paste. Buttermilk and cornmeal makes a good pack, whitening in effect.

Fluffy, Golden Sponge Cake Recipe

By Martha Lee

ONCE UPON A TIME, sponge cakes bore a well-deserved reputation for extravagance—it was very hard on the egg supply. For, made without baking powder, this cake was dependent for its lightness upon a generous number of eggs and the air which the cook beat into them during the mixing.

But, made with the aid of baking powder, a modern sponge cake requires fewer eggs, yet when it comes out of the oven, possesses the same sponge cake lightness and texture.

Sponge cake is an ideal cake for children and a perfect accompaniment to a simple fruit dessert. Here are two sponge cake recipes—one for a Hot Milk Sponge Cake and the other for a Chocolate Sponge Roll—a cake for state occasions.

HOT MILK SPONGE CAKE

1 cup sifted cake flour.
1¼ tsps. baking powder.
⅛ tsp. salt.
1 cup sugar.
2 tsps. lemon juice.
6 tbsps. hot milk.
3 eggs.

Sift the flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Beat eggs until very thick and light and nearly white (10 minutes). Add sugar gradually, beating constantly. Add lemon juice. Fold in flour, a small amount at a time. Add milk, mixing quickly until batter is smooth. Turn at once into ungreased tube pan and bake in moderate oven (350 deg.) 35 minutes, or until done. Remove from oven and invert pan one hour, or until cold.

The mixture may be baked in two lightly greased 8x8x2-inch pans in moderate oven (350 deg. F) 25 minutes, or in 12x8x3-inch loaf pan in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 30 minutes. Or turn mixture in 36 small cup cake pans which have been greased very light on bottoms and bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 20 minutes or until done.

SEVEN-MINUTE FROSTING

2 egg whites, unbeaten
1½ cups sugar
5 tbsps. water
1½ tsps. light corn syrup
1 tsp. vanilla

Combine egg whites, sugar, water and corn syrup in top of double boiler, beating with rotary egg beater until thoroughly mixed. Place over rapidly boiling water, beat constantly with rotary egg beater and cook 7 minutes, or until frosting will stand in peaks. Remove from boiling water; add vanilla and beat until thick enough to spread. Makes enough frosting to cover tops and sides of two 9-inch layers, or top and sides of 8x8x2-inch cake (generously), or about two dozen cup cakes.

MAD MILLIONS -:- By Charles Grant

CHAPTER XXVIII

It was a shame she could not show them, and though she determined she would not let anyone see them, she felt her resistance weaken when Millicent Hinshaw came to tea. Millicent, after all, was like a daughter—or soon would be, she hoped.

"Don't say anything about this, my dear," she said. "I couldn't resist the opportunity to buy them, because, of course, one might never have such another chance in a lifetime. But just at this moment, when there's so much talk about unemployment and everything—and these will be heirlooms, something to hand down in the family forever——"

Her eyes met the girl's in the dressing-table mirror, as she sat before it admiring herself strung with rutilant flashings, and the same thought was in both their minds: Millicent might have a direct interest in this heirloom.

"Why, there's Seward's car?" Mrs. Ingram said, looking out of the window after she had locked the rubies in the wall-safe. "We'll go downstairs now, shall we. I've told them to serve tea under the big copper beech."

Under the fiery splendors of the trees the lawns stretched their spotless green velvet, and Millicent again voiced her admiration of the grounds, as Laura poured tea and thought what a perfect daughter-in-law this girl would make. Seward joined them, a little late.

SEEMS ABSTRACTED

If he seemed rather abstracted, the other two did not notice it. Laura had conceived the idea of a house-party of young people, and was receiving more suggestions for names from Millicent than from her son. All this was interrupted by a servant with a small package on a tray. "For you, sir," said the man to Seward.

He took it without great interest, but, "Do you mind if I open it?' he asked. A registered package was at least more intriguing than the conversation.

His mother had caught a blue flash and she leaned forward, attracted as always by the glimpse of jewels.

"What is it, dear? Why, who could be sending you anything like that—jewelry, surely!"

"'s nothing," he muttered.

"No? Do let me see!" She reached for the box, lifted out Cathleen's bracelet, and let it dangle from her fingers. "How very pretty! And how indiscreet of me to make you show it. Of course you have bought this to give to some lucky girl! If my birthday weren't just behind me, I'd hope that I were the girl!"

Seward was not listening. So Miss Cathleen McCarthy had sent the damned thing back. Why had she done that? Not a word with it. Seward was angry and puzzled and sulky, and deep inside him, a little glad, at having the trinket returned.

He would have accepted his mother's suggestion that it was to be her Christmas present if his associations with the bracelet had been less painful. He said to Millicent, "Do you want it? You may have it."

Millicent uttered a little squeal of delight and clutched at it.

Laura stared at her son. "Well, of all the ungraceful ways of offering a tribute! Couldn't you at least say that it would make you very happy if Millicent would accept this pretty thing? I hope you will, my dear," she added to the girl. "Sapphires match your blue eyes!"

Millicent thought, "He does mean to propose. This is paving the way. He certainly has queer manners, but he'd hardly offer me this, right under his mother's nose, unless he was really getting serious—"

And Seward thought, "Has she got blue eyes? I never noticed." He shot a glance at them, and found they were indeed, a sort of pale China blue.

The remembered beauty of Cathleen's eyes suddenly stabbed him. They were the color of Mediterranean seas, full of depth and light and what he had taken to be soul. Angrily he blinked the vision of them away.

FATHER IS ANGRY

Patrick McCarthy brooded over the dishonor he firmly believed his family had suffered in the person of its daughter. "If I was only the man I was—" he raged, for he was nearer 60 than 50, and suffering from a jumping heart. He might drop dead, the doctor had told him, if he became too excited.

Joe had tried to keep a record, in a little notebook, of the company payments he had received and diverted to his own use. Often he forgot to put these down, and sometimes he used more of the company's money than he had meant to. He was nearly a hundred dollars behind, by his own muddled accounts, but in reality much more than that. He knew the office was on to him when the manager sent for him.

His face went chalk white when Mr. Faber, the office manager, laid before him a sheet of paper that recorded his defalcations. He stood tongue-tied before the proof of his thefts, before the narrowed, contemptuous eyes of his superior, before the imminent prospect of disgrace and prison.

"I'm going to send for the police now," Mr. Faber said, reaching for the receiver of his telephone. "You'll get ten years for this, you crooked little fool. What made you think you could get away with it? Don't you know we have check-up men?"

"I never meant to steal a cent," Joe cried. "I haven't got a head for figures. I must have got your money and my own money mixed, see? Don't be hard on me, Mr. Faber. You tell me how much I'm out and I'll put the money back. I'll make it right!"

"I'll give you until Saturday," said Mr. Faber. "But don't try to pull a get-away. Now beat it and don't come back without the money. And remember, we know where to look for you."

Joe skurried from the office badly shaken. He owed the company two hundred and sixteen dollars, according to the checker's report. What prospect did he have of raising such a sum? It was not likely that search of Cathleen's dresser would reveal another sapphire bracelet . . .

An obscure plan began to shape itself in his frightened mind. Maybe Seward could be made to pay in cash for the damage he had done to Cathleen's reputation! Say he found him somewhere and threatened him first with a brother's vengeance, and then let himself be bought off!

Joe went into Tony's with his confidence somewhat restored. Gemma was perched on a stool at the bar, with Carmine Butti lounging beside her, his arm about her waist.

Carmine did not move nor take his arm away, so Joe had to range up on her other side, facing her back.

"Hello, kid," she threw him over her shoulder. He could see from the ripple of her cheek that she was smiling at the Italian, and he morosely ordered a drink. He did not know how to get Gemma's attention, and she and Carmine were talking in their own language, which infuriated him. But presently the telephone rang inside the bar and Tony answered it.

STOLEN JEWELRY

"It's your brother, Mr. Butti," Tony reported. "He says will you take the call upstairs?"

Carmine vanished, and Joe exulted. "Let's take our drinks over to the table," he urged Gemma. When they had made the move he said, "Gee, kid, you look like a million dollars today."

She laughed, "I'd get a long way on your presents, wouldn't I?"

"But you said you loved me."

"Sure, I love you. I think you're a sweet kid. But you mustn't be jealous. You don't own me. He's darn good-looking. Like a picture star! Then he's Italian, too, same as me. I like that. And he's going in partners now with his brother Vergile. That means he'll be in the money. Big money. You know a girl has to think what a fellow can do for her, Joe. I like you all right, but you'll never have any big money—"

"Yeah? Well, there's more ways than one of making money. I expect to pull down a few grand for myself in a day or so, without taking any chances—You wait, that's all."

Frilled House Frock Has Dash

By MARIAN MARTIN
PATTERN 9115

This is a house frock which the matron may wear, but there is nothing matronly about it—that is in the old meaning of the word. It is neat and slim and charming. The way that frill sets into the collar is new and youthful and the over and back of the closing and front seam is amusing as well as very flattering to the figure. You can make as many as three or four dresses of this design and like them all, especially if you choose different kinds of material, plain and patterned ones in cotton, wool or silk, making the frill to contrast now and then.

Pattern 9115 may be ordered only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 requires 4⅛ yards 36-inch fabric and ⅝ yard contrasting.

Send 15 cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern.

Send your order to Boston American Pattern Department, 232 West 18th street, New York, N. Y.

'Fancy' Bid of Six Is Sound Play

By Josephine Culbertson

The human character is quite frequently reflected in the bidding of Contract hands. Just as we have liberals and conservatives, dullards and imaginative people, we have in Bridge overbidders and underbidders, prosaic bidders and brilliant bidders. Several of the experts have often been accused of bidding in an unnecessarily "fancy" manner. Their critics tell them that their chief object in life seems to be to make their partner's task as difficult as possible.

Today's hand was given to me as an example. All I can say is that if the North and South bidding was "fancy" on this hand, I want to be "fancy" myself.

West, dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

North:
♠ K Q J 9 8 2
♡ A K Q 9 6 4
♣ 8

West:
♠ 7 5
♡ 10 7
◇ A Q 9 3 2
♣ A Q 6 3

East:
♠ 10 6 4
♡ J
◇ K J 8 5 4
♣ K 10 7 4

South:
♠ A 3
♡ 8 5 3 2
◇ 10 7 6
♣ J 9 5 2

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ◇	2 ◇ (1)	Double	Pass
Pass	3 ◇ (2)	4 ◇	Pass
Pass	5 ◇ (3)	Pass	6 ♡ (4)
Pass	Pass (5)	Pass

(1) The North hand is easily strong enough distributionally to justify this Overcall in the opponents' bid suit, which of course is forcing to game. North is really too strong simply to use the Takeout Double, even disregarding the fact that the Takeout Double would be dangerous because of the possibility of a leave-in by South.

(2) The opponents have released South from the obligation of responding to North's force. However, the North player has no desire to choose a suit himself and wants to force his partner to do it. In addition, he wishes to show the great strength of his hand, which the repeated overcalls in the opponents' suit tend to do.

(3) Again South has been released from the obligation of bidding. North's third diamond bid is perhaps ever so slightly dangerous and unnecessarily spectacular. However, the North player, with a freak of this type, cannot be blamed for wanting to indulge in unusual bidding pyrotechnics. North reasons that by again bidding diamonds, thus shutting out the possibility of a final contract of five clubs, he will make South realize that the North hand must be a spade and heart two-suiter, and that South will respond accordingly with his best major, even if it be only three cards in length. Five-odd in either suit looks safe enough to North.

(4) Faith plus intellect accounts for this seemingly insane bid by South. South realizes from his partner's repeated cue bids, and particularly the last one, that the North hand must be good enough to practically insure a contract of five hearts or five spades, even if South himself held a complete Yarborough. South further knows that there cannot possibly be any duplication in the Ace of spades and that therefore this card must eliminate one of North's two losers. In addition, South realizes that if he bids only five, North, who has forced the bid, absolutely must pass unless a spade trick is the only possible loser. Obviously seven would then be a laydown with South's spade Ace. South followed up his reasoning by taking the proper action. He jumped from five diamonds to six hearts, holding four to the eight-spot, with only an Ace on the side. This bid by South was both brilliant and sound, and it is easily seen that the contract cannot be defeated.

(5) North, of course, knows that his partner cannot possibly have both black Aces, and despite South's Jumpy he cannot think of bidding seven.

Proper Way to Sign Name

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a married woman and would like to know what is the proper way to sign my name in a note to a teacher, to a friend and a business concern? F.

Your letter to me was perfectly signed.

Sincerely yours,
MARY SEAMAN.

(Mrs. Frank Seaman).

You might use the surname of your maiden name in your indirect signature (Mary Smith Seaman) but it is just as correct to omit it if you wish to.

And this is the correct signature for you to use when you are writing to a teacher or to anyone who needs to be informed of your formal married name.

To a close friend you would sign only your first name. To an acquaintance or a not-close friend, you would sign your letters:

Very sincerely yours,
Mary Seaman,
or
Mary Smith Seaman.

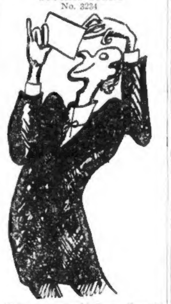
SUCCESS STORY
No. 3234



Who ever would have thought that Mr. Wimble Hackelberry would some day be the idol of millions of souls all over the globe? Certainly not his parents. In fact they were a little discouraged with Wimble, because he never had anything to say, due, perhaps, to faulty bridge work. Wimble spent three years as a freshman in a Chicago Morticians' college, majoring in unction. Then he became a floorwalker in a department store, determined to work up. After ten years he was still in the basement. But Wimble wore a perpetual smile due to skillful tucks made by his father, who was a facial surgeon. And now—what luck!—Wimble has been chosen as the least offensive citizen in Brooklyn! And film producers are frantically bidding against each other for his services as a New Era screen star.

I WEEP FOR HOLY CROSS' APPLE TREES, which crown the brow of Mt. St. James and lift their leafy, fruitful arms. Apples have always been associated with human punishment since the beginning of man and the Eden arboretum.

So it was natural, when urchins nay I might say raggamuffins, pilfered some of the russet globes, that the Holy Cross coaches penalized the public for the sins of the brats by barring it from all future practice sessions.

* * *

THERE IS A DECIDED horsey aroma to some of the new backers of the Boston Garden. Several of the group are speculating on the passage of the dog racing bill by the public next November, hoping to use the slinky, bodkin-bellied pups to induce the public to shower down.

The way the referendum is framed a favorable vote would permit 200 days of racing and would alter the Garden from a financial white elephant to a gorgeous sugar bowl.

But, oh, my friends, if you think the leggy dobbins are a risky chance, you ain't never seen the tricks the weasel hounds can play.

* * *

AVERY BRUNDAGE, U. S. Olympic ambassador, who is now homecoming after a European tour, says that Russia may be invited to send a team to the Berlin games in 1936. But I suspect that the Soviet Union will spurn the invitation, in that they have exalted useful toil and rebuked mere play as a foolish pursuit of capitalistic peoples.

Competition and individual striving is un-Russian under the Bolsheviki. And under the Czar play was considered a monopoly of the privileged class.

Thus Ivan and Boris never realized that their legs were good for anything but to hold their bodies off the ground or their arms for any purpose but plowing, mining and hewing wood

I cannot recall a Russian athlete, or even any Russian sport except Vodka-leaping. Even Hackenschmidt, the old Russian Lion, was actually a product of East Prussia.

JEWISH BOYS IN THE MAJOR LEAGUES are not many, but they are prodigious. There are at the moment five—or more exactly 4½—in the major leagues. (Buddy Myer of Washington being half Gentile.) Of these Danning and Wiebtraub of the Giants are hitting .391 and .362, respectively, more than Bill Terry who, because of his greater number of games, is the nominal league batting leader.

Greenberg of Detroit is hitting .337, sixth in his league, and Myer of the Senators .316. Moe Berg, the fifth of his race, is hitting at a bargain rate for Cleveland, .262.

But Moe is the most remarkable of the lot, being a graduate of Princeton and the Paris Sorbonne in ancient languages. He can read a dozen tongues, including the Arabic and Basque. And he is a practicing attorney in New York city.

"LONE STAR" DEITZ, the three-fifths Indian coach of the Boston Redskins, has the adaptable habits of his forebears. When he motored East from the Pacific Coast to take charge of his squad, he would halt wherever night overtook him, draw up on some lonely stretch, take a blanket out of his car, curl up on the sod and go fast asleep.

Once, after a cold night in Nevada, he shook an adult rattlesnake out of his robe. The cunning little fellow had smuggled up for a cozy night of shuteye, next to Deitz' warm tummy.

COLONEL EDWARD RILEY BRADLEY, one of the few survivors of our old gambling breed, has added the New Orleans horse track to his string of chance-taking devices.

The Colonel has stated that he never made a dollar's profit out of horse racing, and that his famed Idle Hour farm, near Louisville, where he has bred three Derby winners and horses which finished in the money two others times, has been a sinkhole for the enormous gains he has made in his Palm Beach Casino, where one may lay a kidnaper's ransom on a single turn of a card or the romp of the little ping-pong ball on the inside of the parti-colored washbowl.

The Colonel is a philosopher. He donated a church, which stands just a little way down the street from his Palais de Chance at Palm Beach, and from where, during Sunday evenings, the sound of vesper chants reach his gaming patrons in the Salle des Jeux.

JUDGE EMIL FUCHS OF THE BRAVES was born in Germany, coming to this country at an early age with his father, who was a chemist. His love for what we call our National Game was formed as a lad, catching for a New York settlement house team.

The late Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pirates—now in Boston for their final Braves series—was also born in Germany, and took up baseball because his physicians warned him to keep out of doors.

Tommy Connolly, chief of the umpires' staff in the American League, was born in Wales—not Ireland as many people suppose—and came here at the age of 11. He never played a game of baseball.

FRANCIS OUIMET AVERS THAT KNOWLEDGE of a golf course, such as his own familiarity with the Clyde Park links, where the national amateur starts next Monday, is no advantage to a player.

M'LARNIN BOUT TO BE STAGED SEPT. 15

By Associated Press

New York, Sept. 8—Forced into its third straight postponement by rain, the return welterweight championship match between Barney Ross and Jimmy McLarnin today was set ahead to September 15, one week from tonight.

Both Ross and McLarnin will go back into active training tomorrow for the 15-round match in Madison Square Garden's bowl on Long Island, originally scheduled for last Thursday night. McLarnin will train at the Pioneer Gymnasium here, Ross at Stillman's

When rain again interfered today, further postponements ran into the added complications of the Jewish holiday, Rosh Hashana, that would prevent Ross from fighting either Monday or Tuesday night of next week. To give both warriors a chance to regain perfect condition, Promoter Mike Jacobs decided to set a date beyond the reach of the current weather disturbances.

Ticket sales today had reached a total of $147 00, with few cancellations

In second place were Ky Laffoon and Willie Macfarlane, two strokes behind Patroni

Bostonians Fare Poorly in Amateur Golf Draw

By Bill Grimes

Since successfully maneuvering their way through the sectional qualifications, the contenders for the National Amateur Championship have been stewing around getting all hot and bothered worrying over whom they are going to meet in the first round.

Early this morning, the United States Golf Association released the first round pairings and some of the greater Bostonians did not do so well.

For instance, all that Eddie Kirouac, a former state amateur champion, has to do to reach the second round is to eliminate C. Ross Somerville, the ex-U. S. amateur titleholder and many time winner of the Canadian open amateur crown.

Even so, it is by no means assured that Somerville is as good as in the second round, for if the little Walpole player is on his game, he will give the sour Scot from London, Ont., plenty of competition

MARTIN MEETS GARDINER

As a general rule, youngsters are awed when pitted against nationally known stars, especially former title holders but, I do not believe—from my knowledge of this boy—that Martin will "choke" Martin is a real golfer. One with considerable promise and intestinal fortitude and it will befit Bob Gardiner to have all of his shots under perfect control when he tackles the Waltham boy

GUILFORD MEETS PAL

Jesse P Guilford, who is at his best right now, meets his old friend Georgie Taylor, from the Kana Waki C. C. of Montreal, Que Guilford and Taylor have played in Canadian open amateur championships and Lesley Cup matches and this tussle should prove one of the most interesting of the first-day tilts

Francis Ouimet drew Bobby Jones, not the Atlanta wizard, but a youngster from Birmingham, Mich., who is rated highly in the Mid-West, and Freddie Wright has Verne Stewart as his first-round opponent.

Ouimet is very much on his game but from his experience in Chicago two years ago, when Billy Howell, an unknown boy from Virginia, battled him through almost the entire route Francis will not take any chances with Bobby Jones

On the other hand Fred is hooking badly and unless he is able to straighten out his faulty shots will have trouble with the long hitting smooth swinging Californian.

Bill Blaney, the state champion, is assigned to meet Davie Davis, another Californian. Davis qualified in the Baltimore section and has been shooting the Country Club close to par figures while Blaney has been struggling to iron out his game, which is strokes above his usual standard.

BLANEY KEEN UNDER PRESS

Blaney is far better under pressure than while tuning up for a championship and is favored to eke out a victory. In order to continue in the championship, Francis Doyle, Wachusett, must get through Sidney Carson, of Saltsburg, Pa

Rod Brown, Jr., and Alan V Ellis, Jr., the two qualifiers from The Country Club, will play Harry Gandy, Oklahoma City, and John Wagner, Chicago, respectively while Milan Heath, Brae Burn, is matched against M. S. Lindgrove of Short Hills, N. J.

In the original draw, Eddie Stimpson, Brae Burn, was bracketed with Harrison "Jimmy" Johnstone, another former national champion, but the latter withdrew and Eddie moved into the second round.

Although there will be seven former national champions in action on Monday, the majority of the present day big shots and box office atttractions will be idle.

Chick Evans, who was a finalist in the 1922 championship at the Country Club, will play Crawford Rainwater, a substitute from Atlanta, Ga., and H. Chandler Egan, the 1904 and 1905 winner, who eliminated Johnny Goodman a year ago in Cincinnati, drew J. Wolcott Brown, Breille, N. J. Max Marston, who just missed annexing the title again a year ago, was assigned to meet Knox M. Young, Pittsburgh.

So, Too, Is Young Jack Munger

By Bill Grimes

Only one more day for tuning up for the national amateur championship at The Country Club. Then the boys will get their cards and pencils. And see how many will post rounds in the 60's. With the cards and pencils goes the old pressure, and with

Those who saw Francis Ouimet miss a shot in the trap at the 15th were amazed, for there is not a player, amateur or pro in the game more competent to play that type of shot than Francis. However, the traps at The Country Club are tough, particularly if the ball is close to or under the lip of the hazard.

Somebody started the erroneous report that it would be necessary to pledge the family jewels to corral enough coin of the realm to purchase a ticket for the championship The admission is $1.65 for Monday and Tuesday and $2.20 [illegible] The weekly ticket is priced at $6 60.

Dave Herron and his talcum powder have checked in at The Country Club. Although he claims he is underweight, Dave looks bigger than ever

Jack Munger is more chipper today than he has been in weeks. The Texan has been many strokes away from his normal game for weeks and was doing considerable worrying over his slump. But he turned in a 70 in the rain and now feels that he is set for the championship.

Along with fretting over just how far they are going next week, Dave "Spec" Goldman and Reynolds Smith, who hail from Texas, are already giving some thoughts as to how they are going to get back to the Lone Star State.

For a few moments this morning, they thought they were all set for the return trip when they learned that a fellow statesman had purchased a new sedan and would drive back But [illegible] the four would be too much of a crowd for a sedan.

Apparently the three new irons straightened out George T. Dunlap, Jr., for, on a rain-soaked course, the defending champion carded a 69, two under par figures.

Tommy Tailer, the Metropolitan District champion, who was the medalist of the New England District qualifying round, contracted a heavy cold last week and spent three days of this week in bed He does not look any too well.

Mail Clerks Hold 'Ace' Lead

By Sully Kozol

At 9 o'clock this morning a formidable array of prospective winners were on hand to enter the Third Annual Hole-In-One tournament being sponsored by the Boston Evening American at the Franklin Park golf course

Already more than 500 have stepped up to the tee None has succeeded in getting a hole-in-one, although several have come close to the hallowed cup.

Mail Clerk Dennis Sullivan still holds onto top honors, one foot, 1¼ inches from the mark. His working mate, Jack Donegan, is second two feet, 2½ inches away

The policemen aren't going to let the mail clerks get away at least not without a fight. Patrolmen Joseph Fitzgerald and John Wuerth of Quincy will tee off next week Wuerth has been officially credited with a hole in one at Wollaston

You may enter the American's Hole-In-One tournament any day this week and next. Entries will be accepted at the tee. Simply bring along five balls and your own club

The balls will be returned to the owners by caddies assigned for the purpose. Come on out and try it!

'SPINNER' AIDS WAITE HOYT IN COMEBACK

By Joe Cashman

W[illegible] Lynwood Rowe was yet [illegible] bare-footed over the cactus [illegible] native Texas, the American League thrilled at the ex[illegible] schoolboy m[illegible]

[illegible] the ace of the league-leading Tigers. Back in 1921 then a veteran of three campaigns in the majors, though only 21, apple-cheeked Waite Hoyt was the star of the champion Yankees, credited with 19 [illegible] in the regular season and three World Series games against the Giants during w[illegible] allow an earned run.

[illegible] 13 years later finds Hoyt still a wonder Almost 20 years out of Erasmus high school in Brooklyn he looks but a year or two older now than when he joined the Red Sox back in 1919, and the records prove him the most successful of the Pittsburgh Pirates' pitchers.

Waite will celebrate his 35th birthday tomorrow by stepping out against the world's champion Giants over in New York in quest of his 11th victory of the season. No other of the Traynor flingers has reached double figures in the win c[illegible]

He was to have pitched against the Braves today but rain came along to wash out the scheduled doubleheader at the Wigwam. These games can not be played off as the Bucs and Warriors don't play again this year.

Hoyt's showing this year represents one of the most remarkable comebacks ever recorded

Having picked up the rudiments of the undertaking profession in his spare moments while helping the Yankees to six pennants from 1921 to 1928, Waite appeared to have convinced himself as far as big league pitching was concerned back [illegible]

The Yanks let him go. The Tigers [illegible] him on and profited not [illegible] Athletics in 1931. Ditto the Giants and Dodgers the next year

He popped up with the Pirates last summer but was of little help, winning only five and losing seven with a club that finished second If the Bucs hadn't been so desperate for mound material this past spring, it's probable he wouldn't have been tendered a '34 contract.

In Manager "Pie" Traynor's opinion, the merry mortician's surprisingly fine showing is due to his success in rounding into the best physical condition in years and developing a new delivery.

According to the pilot, Waite has perfected a baffling pitch called a "spinner," to mix up with the curve and fast ball that were so highly respected and greatly feared by American League batters for more than a decade.

This so-called "spinner" may or may not have been the answer, but the last time the Pirates were here, Waite turned in the classiest mound effort seen at the Wigwam this season, blanking the Warriors with one scratch hit.

"Schoolboy" Rowe may last through 16 seasons in fast company and have enough stamina and stuff left to chalk up a one-hit game, but the odds are decidedly against it.

Battles Battlers Face Pinckert Panthers at Dilboy Field

By Walter Kiley

Two huge backfields, possessing speed, deception and power, clash in regulation football game behind two giant lines as the rival teams of Boston Redskins return football to our New England midst at Dilboy Field, Somerville, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30.

Cliff Battles, professional football's greatest ground-gainer, leads his Battles Battlers against Ernie Pinckert's Panthers, the same Mr Pinckert being rated the outstanding blocker of the National League.

Much depends on the outcome. First, it will give Coach Lone Star Dietz an accurate gauge on the Redskins' chances of capturing the league crown.

Second, it will enable him to tell which players will be retained and which will be released

Battles teams with Pug Rentner of Northwestern, for whom Dietz is claiming a brilliant future Rentner will start at right halfback and will throw passes to Battles and lanky Charlie Malone Steve Hokuf, 200-pound Nebraskan all-around athlete, is to be Battles' quarterback, the quartet to be rounded out by Swede Ellstrom at fullback

ANDREWS FINE PASSER

Opposed to this group will be Pinckert and his running mates, Syl Saumer, Jack Andrews and Doug Wycoff.

Saumer, who gained more than 3000 yards in his college days, is to be at left halfback and Pinckert at right halfback.

Andrews, who comes from Texas with a great passing reputation, is to be at quarterback with Wycoff, Georgia Tech pile driver, at fullback

Ted Wright, nation's high scorer two years ago, will alternate with Saumer while Phil Sorboe may get back into the lineup to relieve one of the Battlers' backs.

The rival lines loom as impressive as the backfields.

Turk Edwards massive all pro tackle, will be at left tackle for the Battlers. Orien Crow, 21-year-old Indian, is to be pivot man. Marnie Intrieri and Rip Collins are to play right guard and end, respectively Chuck Malone, Texan, Swede Olsson, great Southern guard, and Gail O'Brien, Nebraska tackle, complete the imposing forward wall.

BOSTON BOYS START

Flavio Tosi, of Boston College fame, gets his big opportunity in pro play as he starts at left end for the Panthers while Ernie Concannon of Waltham, another local hope, is to be at guard.

The rest of the line holds up to that of the Battlers so that the fur should be flying in all directions.

Four other Greater Boston players will get their chance to stick on the Redskins' roster Al Cullen of Salem, Lorne Johnson of Lynn Bob McNamara of Lexington and the youthful Ed Crovo of Arlington high will get into the game.

The game has been made a benefit for the Dilboy Post, V. F. W., with the proceeds to go to the post fund

Tokio, Sept. 8—American track and field athletes were hard pressed to win from a picked team of Japanese stars in a track meet here today. The American scored 38 points to 37 for the Japanese in a program of eight events.

WRESTLING BAN ORDERED IN SALEM

There will be no more wrestling shows in Salem The boys are too rough

That was the edict today by City Marshal John C. Harkins, after reviewing the melee between wrestlers and referee at the North street Arena.

Fred Bruno and Chuck Montana were the combatants in the main bout when the rioting started.

When they hopped on Referee Al Rodrigues, six spectators jumped into the ring to aid the Quincy battler. Police jumped into the breach and ended the ruckus after other spectators had got in a few punches here and there.

Earlier in the evening, during a battle royal, Art Flynn and Mike Tellegen also were engaged in fisticuffs with Rodrigues.

It was too much for one night. And City Marshal Harkins says there will be no more of it.

Huskies Plan Floodlight Practice

Beginning next Tuesday Northeastern football candidates will practice under floodlights. Classes begin next Tuesday, and practice cannot begin until after 4 p. m.

More than 50 men are expected to be on hand for the first twilight and floodlight practice. Over 70 freshmen will turn out for their opening practice Monday.

The possibility that Mert Rice, Chelsea lad, who has never played football before, will be made a back looks more promising since he has shown facility in passing

Jay Hart by far is outpunting all the other backfield men.

Tony Sarausky, playing manager for the Arlington entry in the Boston Twi League and a student at Fordham University, is Jim Powers' nomination. Powers, who resides at 26 Amherst street, Arlington, has followed Sarausky throughout the entire season.

"The fact that he has made a number of home runs does not prompt me to select Sarausky," Powers wrote, "but rather because these homers would have gone for legitimate extra base-hits in any big league park.

"Sarausky has as much punch in his bat as Max Baer has in his right duke. He has the ideal build for a ball player, being six feet tall, weighing 200 pounds, shoulders like Schulmerich's, legs ditto, forearms and wrists like Foxx.

"Give this boy attention, officials. Take him south in the spring, and he'll pay you dividends in a very short time. He'll be a second Joe Vosmik some day, believe me."

FAIR COUNTESS PAYS $74.60 IN WIN OF 2D AT ROCKINGHAM

DAUDET BEST ON SALEM PROGRAM

By Dave Wilson

SELECTIONS MADE FOR A FAST TRACK

BEST BET—DAUDET

Rockingham Park, Sept. 9—Daudet, a platter with a smattering of class is so well suited by all the conditions of the seventh race, that I must rate him as the safest wagering proposition here on Monday afternoon.

The son of Dodge gace notice that he was back in top form by placing to pass in a mile race last out at Narragansett. Daudet came from far back in that effort to be beaten only a neck on he wire.

The distance on Monday's race is a furlong further and should be right down Daudet's alley. The opposition is by far the weakest that he has ever encountered to date.

SELECTIONS MADE FOR A FAST TRACK

BEST BET—DAUDET

Rocgingham Park Sept 8—Daudet ,ap latter with a smattering of class is so well suited by all the conditions of the seventh race, that I must rate him as the safest wagering proposition here on Monday afternoon.

The son of Dodge gave notice that he was back in top form by placing to pass in a mile race last out at Narragansett. Daudet came from far back in that effort to be beaten only a neck on the wire.

The distance of Monday's race is a furlong further and should be right down Daudet's alley. The opposition is by far the weakest that he has ever encountered to date.

Royal Link, Molly Greenock, Miss Boss

FIRST RACE—Two-year-olds, claiming, $8[illegible] five furlongs.
6 Royal Link x105 Haines 5-2
7 Molly Greenock x111 Corbett 2
2 Miss Boss 1[illegible] Aranio 6-1
1[illegible] John Grayson [illegible] Fetter [illegible]
3 Radiator 1[illegible] Sake [illegible]
12 Half Fast 111 Lutzer [illegible]
5 [illegible] [illegible]
9 [illegible] [illegible]
11 [illegible] Helm [illegible]
5 [illegible] [illegible]
4 Chance Bay x112 Lynch [illegible]

ROYAL LINK should reverse the tables on Molly Greenock under the weight arrangements. The latter earned a neck decision over the son of Royal Canopy a few days ago. However, Royal Link will have a seven pound shift in weights favoring him in this affair. MOLLY GREENOCK is a fleet trick away from the barrier and is sure to prove a stubborn contender despite the extra poundage. MISS BOSS would have been much closer in her last start with better racing luck.

HOME LOAN, WILD PIGEON, RIVER ROSE

SECOND RACE—Two-year-olds, claiming, $800, five furlongs.
8 Home Loan x171 Peters 7-2
3 Wild Pigeon x115 Maschek 2
4 River Rose x100 Helm 10-1
1 Wax x103 Stevenson 8-1
6 Link n Sister x113 Lynch [illegible]
10 W[illegible] 108 Haines 10-1
1 On Our Way 1[illegible] Jacobs [illegible]
7 Ann O'Rile 107 Saunders 20-1
9 Blue R[illegible] 1[illegible]6 Porter 20-1
2 Pretty S[illegible] x1[illegible]2 King 20-1
11 Hard Chase 107 Parke 20-1

HOME LOAN, a consistent performer at Narragansett, has only to run back to anyone of his good races in order to earn brackets. According to the clockers, the mortgage gelding is razor sharp. WILD PIGEON is the class of the race, but he performed so miserably in his last outing that I cannot move him any closer than the place. RIVER ROSE is extremely fond of mud and will be a real threat if the going comes up sticky.

HAPPY SCOT, PAPER PROFITS, LAMPORTE

THIRD RACE—Three-year-olds and up, [illegible] furlongs.
11 Happy Scot x1[illegible]5 Peters 5-2
3 Paper Profits x107 King [illegible]-2
15 Lamporte 115 Landolt 6-1
2 True Balance x115 Helm 4-1
10 Su[illegible] x1[illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
8 Sone[illegible] 113 Locke 1-1
7 Star Queen x107 Rosengarten 15-1
9 Pamphlet x112 Lynch 10-1
11 Prattles x1[illegible] Daniels [illegible]
1 Happy Surprise 11[illegible] Sage 10-1
11 Wind God 114 Peters 20-1
12 Welsh Lass [illegible]7 Haines 20-1
16 Grace Butler x110 Peters 10-1
6 Kay nite x1[illegible]5 Owens 20-1
5 Little Wing x105 Pikor 20-1
17 Fashion Show x1[illegible]5 Helm 20-1

HAPPY SCOT has the necessary class to handle a field of this sort providing that he gets off the eligible list. The Scotch Broom colt's outing earlier in the meeting was in the nature of a conditioner and should have put him right on edge. PAPER PROFITS displayed considerable improvement in his last outing over this course and should prove a troublesome customer. LAMPORT, another on the also eligible list, should prove a stout contender if able to got postward.

TELL WHY, IMMUNE, NIMULE

FOURTH RACE—Three-year-olds and up, maidens, claiming, $800, five and one-half furlongs.
2 Tell Why 117 Schaefer 2-1
4Immune x105 Helm 2-1
5 Nimule 111 King 6-1
9 Emp[illegible] x105 Howell 8-1
3 Canteret 108 Lynch 10-1
1 Silver Wrack x105 Maschek 15-1
8 Harvey G. O. x108 Rosengarten 30-1
6 Ivanoff x111 Prior 15-1
7 Secular x108 Lynch 20-1

Throw out TELL WHY's last race and he loks all over the winner of this affair. That race was evidently too poor to be true. Mayhap that he disliked the slow footing that prevailed. IMMUNE is strictly the one to drub on her last race. The daughter of Strolling Player displayed a high turn of speed to lead right down to the wire and was beaten less than a half length for all the money by Resurrection and Dark Tyrant. NIMULE turned in an excellent performance last out considering that it was his first start in over a year. With a little improvement he would be all dangerous.

FLYING CADET, JESTING ELF LOCK

FIFTH RACE—Three-year-olds and up. Press Claiming Handicap, 1200, mile.
4 Flying Cadet 114 Mattioli 8-2
3 Jesting 116 Landolt 3-1
2 Elf Lock 99 Helm 3-1
1 Gold Signet 100 Cornett 4-1
8 Wacoche 1[illegible] Landolt 10-1
5 The Porter 95 Rosengarten 1-1

FLYING CADET is the topweight and best horse in this affair, according to recent dope. Over at Narragansett, the son of Busy American handled this soret with ease. JESTING dropped a head decision to ELF LOCK in his debut over this course, but has a shift in weight in his favor today. ELF LOCK was a scheduled starter in the Mount Washington handicap this afternoon and may not parade postwrd in this affair. However, the Whit-

Pass, Laureta Nash, Boy Crazy

SIXTH RACE—Three-year-olds and up, claiming $800, mile.
3 Pass 107 Landolt 7-5
2 Lauretta Nash 108 Kneessi 5-2
1 Boy Crazy 101 Peters 5-1
7 Hero [illegible] 1[illegible]4 Jacobs 10-1
5 Paint[illegible] x108 Howell 15-1
8 Harry Hopes x108 Maschek 20-1
4 Black Velvet x108 King 20-1

PASS is well suited by all the conditions of this affair. The distance is right down his alley and the opposition is same as that he mastered in his lone victory at Narragansett. LAURETT NASH is evidently not far from top form as may be evidenced by her sparkling third in a six furlong dash last out. When at her best the Kneessi breadwinner is capable of furnishing the top one with plenty of trouble. BOY CRAxY has had a lot of it during the past month but on form he should not have much trouble in holding the others safe.

Daudet, Lawless Lady, How High

SEVENTH RACE—Three-year-olds and up, claiming, $800, one mile and one-eighth.
5 Daudet x111 Lynch 2-1
6 Lawless Lady 107 Haines 3-1
9 How High x107 Lynch 6-1
4 Resurrection 116 [illegible] 6-1
3 Dont Blush x104 Winters 1[illegible]-1
2 Galon Lad 108 Helm 10-1
8 Gay Party x111 Saunders 20-1
1 My Kentucky 112 Rose 20-1
7 Big Grass 109
x Apprentice allowance

DAUDET shapes up as a spread in this affair. Contention, if any, should be furnished by LAWLESS LADY. The latter was an easy winner over a cheap field in her last start. HOW HIGH trailed in his last outing, but in a previous race he placed against cheap ones.

IMA GREENOCK TAKES FIRST AT SALEM

By DAVE EGAN

Rockingham Park, Sept. 8—It came up oodles of mud here this afternoon when rain once again made the track a field of soppy mud. The miserable weather conditions cost Lou Smith and his associates at least $10,000. For not more than 12,000 people were in attendance.

In the first race Teeter Totter broke fast and assumed the lead of the pack in what we term "a sea of mud." Ima Greenock, the two-year-old chestnut filly owned by Jack Howard and ridden by Charlie Corbett, was splashed in the mud that streamed from Teeter Totter's hoofs.

She took it like a gamester, however, and forced her way into the lead while coming down the homestretch. Teeter Totter finished second and Unlawful finished third, lengths behind the first pair.

FAVORITS AGAIN FAIL

Evidently the favorites either don't like the rain and mud or it isn't their day. Once again a horse who didn't have a chance walked away from the field and pranced home to pay the sum of $8.20, not as much as some would like, but enough to pay expenses for the day. Kai-Finn, a strong favorite who gave most of the contention, landed second hole and paid the good price of $5.30.

Although the rain had let up some when the mounts came to the post the field was still in that terrible condition and the footing was just as bad as ever. Liberty Oak fought it out with Kai-Finn for a short spell, but the helm guided horse soon drew away from the son of Kai Sang and romped home in easy fashion. Hasty Belle, with F. Maschek up, gave Kai-Finn a battle but was able to do no better than third hole.

TOTAL OF RAIL WORKERS HAS DECLINE

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Latest figures on railroad employment show that a prediction made some weeks ago by the Railway Age that passage of the Pension Act would cut into the ranks of active workers has been fulfilled. In June of this year railway employees numbered 1,054,426. In July following the passage of the Pension Act total workers declined about 6500 from the June figure. Usually July finds the railways reporting a seasonal increase in employment. Railway Age now feels that the decline is continuing but definitely indicates that it is due to the unwise passage of the bill.

Current irregular trade conditions are not viewed with alarm by the United Business Service. In its regular Saturday release the service states that an upturn may be expected before November. A speeding up of federal spending and lending operations will supply the chief impetus for more active industrial operations, higher employment levels and larger retail volume. Private capital is seen as remaining dormant because of mass restrictions on financial and industrial operations.

Notes: We wondered yesterday if the break in Smelting would call for an investigation and did not have long to wait . . . Willoughby & Osgood have prepared a chart showing the bond and stock issues legal in Vermont . . . It is the first that has come to our attention and enables bankers and brokers to determine at a glance the issues to which they should direct their attention . . . But the most interesting feature of the chart is the thumb nail outline of various classes of securities showing how Vermont prescribes legality.

Individually and as a group the smelting shares have broken out on the downside. Traders holding these shares will undoubtedly take advantage of all intermediate rallies to liquidate positions. While the future of silver prices may be rosy it is likely that the entire group will require a bit of time to recuperate from the shocks of recent sessions. It will only be a waste of time and possibly result in lost opportunities in other directions to try waiting out the period of recuperation.

Briefs: Elsewhere on this page an item is headed: "Government is not to compete in the shoe business" . . . Hard to believe, but there it is . . . The writer never thought he would live to see the day when it would be necessary to write heads on articles in which the government officials had to reassure private business . . . Actually say that it would not become a competitor . . . But, in these upset days, it is best to be thankful for small favors . . . For tomorrow the Brain Trusters may have a different idea.

Office equipment sales are reported as continuing to expand. Both foreign and domestic sales are seen as gaining in the first days of September. Marketwise the big board favorites, International Business Machines, Burroughs and Remington Rand, should continue to act in good fashion. Although buyers might take the conservative view that the trade will not experience the abortive expansion of September, 1933.

One of the better good news notes is contained in the American Telephone statement on units in service. The loss of July was one-third recaptured in August. Not a bad achievement when it is remembered that August is the big vacation month. At the same time the telephones in use measured against August, 1933, shows that this year 10,750 units were added against a loss last year of some 20,000. We see these figures as indicating a better trend than other indices suggest.

Commodity Prices Higher in Week

Wholesale commodity prices for the week ended September 1 increased 8-10ths of 1 per cent, advancing to the highest level of the present year, Bureau of Labor Statistics reported. This was the fifth consecutive weekly advance. The index now stands at 77.5 of the 1926 average, against 76.9 for the week ended August 25.

Says Government Is Not to Compete in Shoe Business

Federal officials state that the Government does not intend to go into the shoe business, and that there will be no competition with private industry. This is an answer to the telegram sent by the National Boot & Shoe Manufacturers' Association, protesting against the Government competing with private enterprise in the manufacture of shoes.

Starting September 5, drouth cattle purchased by the Government passed into the control and possession of the Federal Relief Corporation, which is headed by Harry Hopkins. At latest reports Mr. Hopkins did not reach a decision as to what would be done with the hides but assures the industry that they will be kept out of the open market. They will be processed by tanners in the field. There is also a possibility that the plan suggested by some members of the industry that the hides be kept in storage for a period of at least two years, may be followed.

The Federal Government is awake to the fears of the shoe and leather trade and no movement will be made as to the final disposition of hides and leather without taking this into consideration. Research is now being made by the Government to find a use for the hides in a way that would be non-competitive and officials of the Federal Surplus Relief Corporation will probably canvass the non-competitive field very carefully during the next few weeks.

Up to August 31, the Farmers' administration reports the purchase of 4,250,000 cattle in more than a score of states for which payment of about $39,000,000 has been made to approximately 250,000 farmers. The purchase of drouth cattle will continue and estimates vary as to the total number of hides involved eventually in the drouth relief program. It is stated that the Government intends for the time being to keep all hides and skins of drouth cattle off the commercial market.

Curb Market Lower in Dullness

By Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 8—The curb market was irregularly lower in today's short session. While offerings were not heavy, being mostly in the way of week-end adjustments, they were sufficient to depress leading utilities, oils and industrials minor fractions to around a point.

A number of packing shares and metals escaped the downward trend and showed moderate advances. Trading was brisk at the start, but quieted down later.

Great Atlantic & Pacific lost nearly a point, Aluminum Company and Creole Petroleum were around ½ lower, and fractional declines occurred in such issues as American Cyamid "B," Cities Services, Electric Bond & Share, Humble Oil, Lake Shore Mines, National Bellas Hess, Newmont Mining, and Niagara Hudson.

Garlock Packing gained a point and others of the packing group improving moderately included Swift Internacionale and Swift & Company. Wright Hargreaves, one of the most active metal stocks on the board, gained a fraction after showing some irregularity shortly after the opening.

FALSE IDEA OF MONEY CAUSES TROUBLE

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

New York, Sept. 8—We are apparently in another one of those periods of talk about conservative government finance and "soft-pedaling" inflation. Thursday, government bonds spurted and "inflation stocks" declined. Evidently the dollar was supported in foreign exchange.

The administration seems to be more concerned about its credit than at any other time, and there are some indications that it has resorted to supporting dollar exchange for the first time.

This is tardy recognition of the importance of the monetary tinkering as affecting public fiance. It should have been clear all along that money is just the tool of credit, and that all that has been done to unsettle and depreciate the dollar would inevitably shake credit of all kinds, including the government's.

Unfortunately, tinkering with stabilization funds to "support" the currency or the bond market is not sufficient. It is just dealing with symptoms and scratching surfaces. The cause of the trouble is not touched.

What is the cause?

The answer is plain. It lies in (1) a false idea of money, and in (2) a false theory of government.

As to money, the root idea of the Administration is that money can be manufactured by government and can be juggled at will. They consider money as being just credit. Theirs is essentially a fiat theory of money.

They prate about "the metallic base" for our money, but they refuse to base our money on metal. They talk of a 59-cent gold dollar, but there are no such dollars. Try to get one! The only practical use they make of "devaluation" is to write up a paper profit on the government's books, which they proceed to spend in a way calculated to inflate our currency.

And what does this theoretical gold dollar mean, when they proceed to dilute it by adding 25 per cent silver? And what does silver mean when they take 43 cents silver and call it $1.29. (There is only about 39 cents worth of silver in a silver dollar).

The plain fact is that we are not on the gold standard, or on the silver standard, or on any standard at all. The government has a lot of gold. It is paying ridiculous prices for a lot of silver. But you and I have nothing and can get nothing but the government paper which is dealt out to us by the new dealers.

Government Bonds Under Pressure

By Associated Press

New York, Sept. 8—U. S. Government bonds were subjected to a little pressure today and prices were lower all through the list. Corporate issues accounted for small dealings and generally unimportant price changes.

Losses in the Federal were not large enough to cancell the gains of the immediately preceding sessions which followed the sinking spell earlier in the week, but they nevertheless ran to about ⅛ of a point in treasury 3s of 1951, Federal Farm 3s and both Home Loan issues.

As prices of the government eased there was conjecture that some holders were desirous of liquidating on the possibility that the market might not respond favorably to the treasury's announcement of its September-October financing plans, which is due on Monday.

A few corporate issues were heavy, the main body of the list moved within extremely small swings. Losses of fractions to a tions of Southern Railway, Canadian Pacific, International Telephone, Youngstown Sheet & Tube and National Dairy Products. Prime issues were firm.

Most foreign loans were dull and virtually unchanged. German 7s had a moderate turnover around the final prices of yesterday. Japan 6½s and Poland 7s were up fractionally.

ALASKA JUNEAU STATEMENT

Regarding many inquiries received at company's office concerning Alaska Juneau's current operations, some of which were prompted by stock market service reports of a definitely disparaging character, President Bradley issued the following statement:

"Earnings are low because of lower grade ore and higher costs. Forecasts made earlier in the year indicated that at this time the revenue would be favorably affected by treating increased quantities of ore from the lower levels, but the time required for installation of the new hoist was underestimated and the new work may not be completed until the end of next month. The additional time required for this work, and the issuance of misleading statements in certain market news have caused some unnecessary concern on the part of stockholders."

Stock Market Time Table

10-11—Trading was dull and featureless in the first hour. Prices were mixed and narrow changes ruled. Sales totaled 90,000 shares.

11-12—Last hour dealings were featured by extreme dullness with a steady tone ruling after early irregularity. Day's turnover was estimated at 210,000 shares.

New York, Sept. 8—The stock market was a dull affair today with prices on the whole tending toward lower levels.

The mining shares, which had provided the feature of the past two sessions, were quiet and generally steady today.

PROBE U. S. SMELTING

U. S. Smelting, whose 20-point collapse is now being investigated by the Stock Exchange at the behest of the Securities & Exchange Commission, appeared to have regained its composure today. The issue closed practically unchanged.

Steel and other industrial shares, however, were sluggish and fractionally lower.

Communications stocks were unsettled.

Consolidated Gas was a weak spot in the utilities dipping to within a fraction of its record low.

Railroad shares showed a moderately improved tone in the final minutes of trading with prices virtually unchanged from yesterday's close.

AUTO OUTPUT UP

A greater-than-seasonal gain of 40,264 cars in freight movement last week was due largely to an increase of 19,174 in coal loadings, but next to coal, the biggest gain was in movement of miscellaneous freight.

Cram's reports estimated automobile output this week had increased 5580 units to 32,588 on a recovery from the let-down in the week preceding Labor Day. In the same week last year output was 43,121 units.

Indications point to a September output of about 200,000 cars, the smallest since January, according to Cram's.

Leading active commodities have been moving in a narrow range for the past two weeks, but the Bureau of Labor statistics wholesale commodity price index, based on a wide range of goods, advanced six-tenths of a point to 77.5, a new peak for the year and the fifth consecutive weekly rise.

Cotton cloth production in the week preceding Labor Day increased substantially as mills speeded up in anticipation of the textile strike. The Cotton Textile Institute estimated output for the week amounted to 110,000,000 yards compared with 95,291,000 the previous week.

STATE STREET SIDELIGHTS

Shields & Co.—Soon after the government's operation there is likely to be revival of expectation that the inflation needle will be used again. If so, the market would respond as it is very thin and without powerful sponsorship so that all news and rumors have exaggerated influence. No actual inflationary happening is expected for some time, however, so that there is no reason for haste in buying or changing advised trading policy.

Elmer H. Bright & Co.—Continued increase in the reserves of the banks of the country keep in mind the possibilities of large expansion of credit at such time as business confidence may again seek accommodation.

Hayden, Stone & Co.—We do not subscribe to the belief that the possibilities of inflation at the moment warrant the purchase of common stocks. In spite of the fact that all of the important raw commodities have doubled in price, the average of stocks is lower than ayear ago. We do subscribe to the theory of the control of prices by earnings and confidence, or the lack of it. On this score we are still hopeful.

Josephthal & Co.—The short interest figures published after the close suggest that the market will not be wholly without buying interest, come what may.

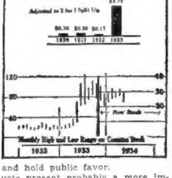
National Distillers In Strong Position

Analysis Prepared by THE FITCH INVESTORS SERVICE

While there is little basis on which to measure probable earnings during 1934, this company, the principal factor in the production and distribution of whiskeys in the United States, should, judging by its first quarter report of $2.11 a share, be able to show substantial improvement over the $3.77 per share reported for last year.



MEETING COMPETITION SATISFACTORILY

As is always the case with the birth of an industry, or the revival of an old one, competition in the liquor field here has grown to intense proportions with consequent price cuts. Again, however, abatement of the initial flare of enthusiastic demand generally finds most smaller competitors either absorbed by the stronger units, should their product warrant this consideration, or merely weeded out as the more superior brands find and hold public favor.

National Distillers' products present probably a more imposing array than any of its competitors has to offer, so that its trade position would seem comparatively well assured. So far as the possibility of further price-cutting competition is cocnerned, the management has during the past few years overlooked little, if anything, in building its organization into a well-rounded out, low cost producer.

LARGEST WHISKEY DISTILLER IN U. S.

Company, through its subsidiary, American Medicinal Spirits Co., is the principal factor in the distilling, storing and distribution of spirits or whiskeys in the United States. Its old established distilleries are located in Baltimore, Md., and Louisville, Ky. Other important factors in the liquor industry controlled or owned include Crown Fruit & Extract Co., Petroleum Chemical Corp., Penn-Maryland, Inc., Alex. D. Shaw & Co., Overholt and Large distilleries, and others.

NO FUNDED DEBT OR PREFERRED STOCK

Capitalization, free of funded debt and preferred stocks consists solely of 2,022,083 shares of no par common stock.

Financial condition as of Dec. 31, 1933 was good. While current assets of $18,307,000 were over four times current liabilities, cash was relatively small.

Canadian Wheat Crop Estimated

In the Prairie Provinces of Canada harvesting has been delayed by unsettled weather but threshing is under way again in most districts and is well advanced in the southern and central areas of the three provinces, according to the current crop report of the Bank of Montreal.

Frost damage has affected the grades in the north. Estimates place the western wheat crop at slightly above last year's yield. The yield of coarse grains is very light and pasturage is poor.

In Quebec crops generally are in satisfactory condition and with favorable weather conditions average yields are in prospect in most sections. In Ontario threshing of spring grains reveals a better than average yield with quality good. Estimated yields of roots and apples and peaches are much below average.

In New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island crops continue to make good progress. In Nova Scotia yields will be materially below average due to lack of moisture. In British Columbia the yield of grain is about average. A particularly heavy second crop of alfalfa is practically harvested and tree fruits are ripening satisfactorily.

NEW BUSINESS FOR BRIGGS

Business already placed with Briggs Manufacturing Company for next year has necessitated added equipment as well as certain additions and alterations to its plants completion of which is expected by Oct. 1, this year. Construction is well under way on a three-story addition to the press room at the Mack avenue plant in Detroit. This new crane-way, 300x200 feet, will increase the present Mack avenue press capacity about 20 per cent.

Additions and alterations just completed in the tool and die division will increase capacity in this department, about 25 per cent by rearrangement of floor space and additional equipment capacity of the automobile door manufacturing division will be approximately doubled.

Inasmuch as the company is not in the steel business it will not be affected by the Ford Motor Company's steel expansion program, excepting that it will buy steel sheets direct from Ford Motor Company instead of through the company as heretofore.

If motor car production for 1935 equals that of 1934 Briggs Manufacturing Company should show a substantial increase in its volume of business for 1935 over 1934, according to interests close to the company.

Central States to Reorganize Soon

Harold G. Hathaway and T. W. D. Duke, reorganization managers of the Central Atlantic States Service Corporation, announced today that the United States District Court, Trenton, N. J., has set September 28, 1934, at 9:30 a. m., as the time for hearings on the proposed plan of reorganization of the company, as proposed by the reorganization managers and now on file at the office of the clerk of the above named court.

The announcement of the reorganization managers states that all creditors and other persons interested in the Central Atlantic States Service Corporation "are hereby ordered to show cause before this court" why the court should not enter an order finding the plan of reorganization as presented, or as the same may be amended, fair and equitable; and that the plan does not discriminate unfairly in favor of any class of creditors or stockholders and is feasible.

Copies of the plan, drawn in accordance with Section 77B of the Bankruptcy Act, may be obtained from George B. Macomber, trustee, 1060 Broad street, Newark, N. J.

WOOL GOODS ARE LESS ACTIVE

Wool goods business was irregular this past week, states New York Wool Top Exchange Service. Labor difficulties cast a shadow over the market, for, although the attempted walkout in wool goods mills was a failure, many buyers hesitated to place orders owing to uncertainty regarding the strike plan of the garment workers' unions.

"Activity in wool manufacturing is declining more rapidly than activity in all textile manufacturing or activity in general manufacturing, according to well-known indexes," states the service. "The New York Wool Top Exchange Service index for wool manufacturing activity in the United States based on 1923-25 equals 100 and adjusted for seasonal variation, was 56.4 for July, coupared with 57.3 for June and 148.5 for July, 1933. The textile manufacturing index of the Federal Reserve Board was 77 for July compared with 77 for June and 130 for July, 1933. The board's index for general manufacturing was 74 for July compared with 83 for June and 101 for July, 1933. Wool manufacturing activity decreased about 30 per cent from March to July, but textile manufacturing has decreased only about 18 per cent and general manufacturing has decreased only about 10 per cent."

Gold represented $21,503,242, nickel $15,016, 662 and copper $7,525,370. The report shows that tons of ore milled by gold mining companies increased with an accompanying decline in recovery of gold in ounces as price of the metal increased. The exchange equalization received on gold was $4,905,386 in the first half of 1933 and $15,123,074 in the first half of 1934.

DOCUMENTS SHOW DRIVE ON SHOE TRADE

This article, ninth in a series disclosing the far-reaching effects of the drive of Communists in New England, shows how the radicals have been undermining labor in the big New England shoe centers.

This expose is based upon secret orders of the Communist party which have come into possession of the Boston Evening American.

Copyright, 1934, for the Boston Evening American

With the textile strike threatening to spread to other industries, it is pertinent to reveal today the plans which Communists have made seeking control of labor in New England's big shoe industry.

Earlier articles in this series revealed how orders were issued for a concentration in the textile and shoe centers as the key industries, and how Haverhill was named in the control plan secretly issued by New England Communist leaders.

On March 24, a Communist communique containing the following was sent out from Boston headquarters:

"During the past year the shoe industry has been completely converted from an open shop to a closed shop basis throughout the main centers of Massachusetts.

STRIKES CITED

"This organization was the fruit of a wave of strikes in the industry initiated by our comrades a year ago but which soon swept far beyond our grasp, resulting in the establishment of three shoe unions in New England.

(Ed. Note: This is the first disclosure that Communists began the labor troubles in the shoe industry in late 1932 and early 1933.)

"During and subsequent to the Haverhill strike a year ago, our comrades were able to stimulate the demand of the rank and file for amalgamation, to give organizational expression to this demand and finally, with the help of our New York union, to bring to fruition the TUUL policy for one class struggle union in each industry.

AMALGAMATION TOLD

"The successful amalgamation of the three New England unions and our New York union into one union was possible only as a result of a determined policy of connecting up amalgamation with struggle, constantly resisting the attempts of the union bureaucrats and the Loventonito renegades to use the slogan of amalgamation to effect a merger of the various bureaucratic machines and to rivet upon the shoe workers a stronger united bureaucracy and to bring the union into the American Federation of Labor.

"On the subjective side, the outstanding reasons for this are:

"1—The continued failure to develop independent leadership and to initiate struggles. While the shoe work in Boston has improved in this regard, this still remains the outstanding weakness, as well as in Chelsea and Lynn where there has been no such improvement.

"The same situation exists in the leather union. The unemployed work throughout the district is characterized by waiting for events and for spontaneous actions.

"2—The failure to bring forward the party, which takes the form first of failing to raise the political issues in economic struggles, then of an opportunist resistance to bringing the party forward and capitulating to the red scare: AND FINALLY OF SLURRING OVER THE QUESTION OF THE REVOLUTIONARY WAY OUT OF THE CRISIS.

"The most flagrant example of this was in the Norwood leather strike where the local comrades refused to distribute a party leaflet exposing the sell-out on the grounds that 'it would introduce the red issue and split the union.'"

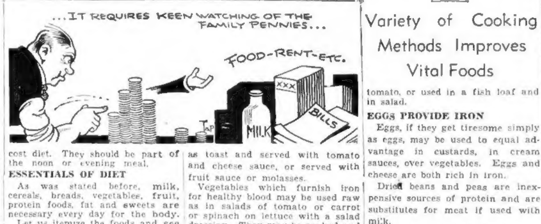
Potatoes Are Essential in Balanced Meals

Experts Say Tubers Should Be Part of Daily Diet

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

This is the fourth of a series of articles on the rising cost of living and how it may be met with proper economy measures.



...IT REQUIRES KEEN WATCHING OF THE FAMILY PENNIES...
FOOD-RENT-ETC.
XXX
BILLS

The Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture says:

"Potatoes every day for a low-cost, balanced diet."

And inasmuch as there is a large supply of the well-known 'spuds,' the report comes as a bright ray on an otherwise drab horizon of increasing food costs.

A peck of potatoes last year dented the pocketbook around 50 cents. Today a peck of potatoes, rich in iron and other food values, costs only 23 to 28 cents.

For a long time Europeans were suspicious of this humble root. Many thought if you ate it you would shorten your life. Frederic the Great had to order his soldiers to compel farmers to plant potatoes.

HIDDEN DEFECTS

When you are buying potatoes, it is a good plan to ask your grocer to cut open one of the lot you are considering. "Hollowheart" and "blackheart" are defects which cannot be detected on the outside.

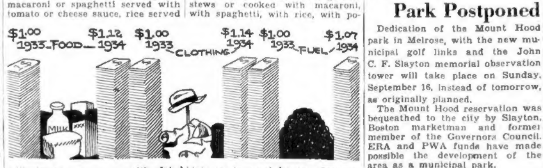
In the winter, potatoes may have a black ring inside the skin. This comes from freezing and usually affects the flavor. They turn dark in cooking, too.

You can spot a sunburned potato by a greenish color on the surface. Watch out for these, as they are usually too bitter to eat.

Wilted, sprouted and cracked potatoes should be avoided. Shallow eyes are preferable because they are less wasteful.

Be sure you are not paying for dirt when your potatoes are weighed.

Potatoes may be wisely used as a filling and beneficial part of a low-cost diet. They should be part of the noon or evening meal.



ESSENTIALS OF DIET

As was stated before, milk, cereals, breads, vegetables, fruit, protein foods, fat and sweets are necessary every day for the body.

Let us itemize the foods and see just how they can be applied to the best advantage, as interpreted by the Community Health Association.

USES OF CEREALS

Milk need not be taken in the raw, should it not be pallatable to some family members. It can be taken in cocoa, on cereals, in soup, in vegetable or fish chowder, in cream sauce for vegetables, in custard, in pudding, with fruits such as banana and baked apple.

Cereals may be taken as cereals, or used in soup, in pudding, as macaroni or spaghetti served with tomato or cheese sauce, rice served with tomato sauce or with dried fruits. Cereals as well as breads are cheap sources of energy.

Breads, which should be eaten with every meal, may be served as milk toast for sandwiches of cheese, vegetables, meat, or spread with cheese and tomato, used in bread pudding and apple pudding, as toast and served with tomato and cheese sauce, or served with fruit sauce or molasses.

Vegetables which furnish iron for healthy blood may be used raw as in salads of tomato or carrot or spinach on lettuce with a salad dressing. They may be cooked and seasoned with butter and salt. They may be cooked and served with cream sauce on toast or over cooked rice.

FRUITS PREVENT SCURVY

Fruits may be served fresh, stewed, baked, canned, preserved, with cereals, in puddings and in salads. Fruits protect the body against scurvy and aid in keeping teeth and gums healthy.

Meat may be used in vegetable stews or cooked with macaroni, with spaghetti, with rice, with potato or in meat loaves. Inexpensive cuts of meat have the same food value as more expensive cuts. It is a muscle building food.

Fish, which is cheaper than meat these days and an able substitute, may be served in chowder or baked with cheese sauces, or stewed with tomato, or used in a fish loaf and in salad.

Variety of Cooking Methods Improves Vital Foods

EGGS PROVIDE IRON

Eggs, if they get tiresome simply as eggs, may be used to equal advantage in custards, in cream sauces, over vegetables. Eggs and cheese are both rich in iron.

Dried beans and peas are inexpensive sources of protein and are substitutes for meat if used with milk.

In the low cost diet cod liver oil may be used as a supplement to the diet of young children throughout the winter months.

The best foods, federal surveys reveal, are not always the most expensive foods. There is such a thing as the art of selecting for your family at lowest cost the foods they must have to be healthy.

Fete at Melrose Park Postponed

Dedication of the Mount Hood park in Melrose, with the new municipal golf links and the John C. F. Slayton memorial observation tower will take place on Sunday, September 16, instead of tomorrow, as originally planned.

The Mount Hood reservation was bequeathed to the city by Slayton, Boston marketman and former member of the Governors Council. ERA and PWA funds have made possible the development of the area as a municipal park.

New Pastor for Medford

Reverend Simeon B. Wright, a student at Newton Andover Theological school, is the new pastor of the Fairfield Avenue Baptist church, West Medford, and will tke charge tomorrow.

BROCKTON FAIR OPENS SUNDAY

Alpha, the Robot, the two-ton mechanical man built by Professor May of London, will be at the opening of the annual Brockton Fair tomorrow, it was announced by the management today, and will be a regular daily feature.

Considered one of the mechanical wonders of the age, Alpha was first exhibited on this continent last year at the Canadian National Exposition. "He" is the result of 14 years of labor and research. His "insides" are a complicated network of wires, sensitive photoelectric cells and contacts, which —when amplified—set relays in operation.

The Fair will open tomorrow with a competition of more than 30 American Legion drum and drill corps from New England, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

NEW BASEMENT AT GILCHRIST'S

Following extensive redecoration and the installation of a modern indirect lightening system, Gilchrist's today staged the gala reopening of its Cash and Carry Basement.

The modernization has been acclaimed by leading architects and decorators, and the store executives expressed the opinion that it will make shopping easier for customers.

The lighting system, they point out, gives daylight effects in all parts of the sales floor, making it possible to form accurate judgments of colors.

Mirrors lining the walls of the millinary section give women an opportunity to judge a hat from many angles. More fitting rooms have also been provided.

Judges of Legion Babies Near End of Task

Time is growing short in the American Legion Baby Contest, and it would be advisable to hurry if you would enter your youngster in the competition.

The American Legion is attempting to pick the "New Era" baby in this state, and any child of any Massachusetts voter, or a child with a legal and registered voter as guardian, is entitled to compete.

Babies entered in the contest are having their photographs reproduced in this newspaper—pictures picked at random—and any day the picture of your child entry may appear. Watch for them each day.

Entries in the contest must be made by means of the baby's photograph. Any picture sent in must be of regular cabinet size.

Ten prizes will be awarded in this contest. To the boy or girl scoring the highest number of points will be awarded a silver loving cup.

For second prize, $25 in the form of a saving account will be awarded to the boy or girl scoring the next highest number of points.

Third prize will be $15, fourth prize will be a shopping check to the amount of $10, which will be accepted in the babies' department of a leading department store; fifth prize will be $5 in cash and a pair of shoes, and there will be five "surprise prizes."

Staff members of various Boston hospitals will be judges of health in the contest, while associates of the Fox Film Corporation and members of the staff of the Boston Evening American will be the judges of personality.

In today's editions of the Boston Evening American will be found printed an entry blank to be used in entering a baby in this contest.

Clip out this coupon blank, fill it in and mail it, with the photograph, to Bob Watts, American Legion Baby Contest, James E. Welch Post, 23 Phillips street, Boston.
